World's Series Opens in Boston Saturday

BOSTON GETS 1ST 2 GAMES

The World's Series will open in Boston Saturday.

This was decided at a meeting of the national commission in New York today, and the news was flashed to Boston at two o'clock.

The first game will be played here Saturday, the second on Monday. The remaining games will take their customary course.

The allotment to Boston of the first two games was made by the national commission without the usual cointossing to decide the matter.

President Lannin of the Red Sox made the suggestion. He pointed out these facts:

That the Red Sox are ready to play and that Braves Field is ready for the game.

That the winner in the National League has not yet been decided, and so it is too much to expect both Brooklyn and Philadelphia to prepare the necessary extra stands.

That after the race is decided, it will be too late to erect extra stands before the first game—unless the opening of the series is deferred to next week.

That it is unwise to defer the opening of the series to next week because cold weather will soon come and spoil ball playing.

President Lannin urged these arguments on the national commission with such vehemence, and the manager of the Brooklyn and Philadelphia clubs showed such willingness to agree to the arrangement, that the decision to start the series Saturday in Boston was reached, and announced today.

BULGARS ROUTED BY THE BRITISH

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 3.—Bulgarian forces on the Struma River front in Greece have been routed by the British. The War Office announced today that the Bulgarians, using three battalions, attacked the new positions of the British on the Struma River yesterday, but were repulsed. The British then attacked with the bayonet, routing the Bulgars and capturing forty prisoners.

British airmen on the Balkan front have bombarded troop trains en route to Seres.

Appeals Jail Sentence.

In the South Boston Court today James J. Flaherty was convicted of assault and battery on Patrolman Kenny of Station 6, and for attempting to rescue a prisoner from the same officer. He was sentenced to one month in the House of Correction on each charge. He appealed.

Thursday the Day For the World's Series Tickets

The anxious "fans" who have made application for World's Series tickets may receive word from the Red Sox management by Thursday, or probably earlier.

The applications, which are coming in bundles, are being straightened out and filed as quickly as possible. A large force of clerks is handling the mail, and, judging by the way the letters are pouring in, the Boston demand will be greater than any previous year.

While arrangements for handling the applications have been somewhat hampered by the closeness of the American League race the work is now well under way, and, as has been said before, the anxious applicant may get the good news Thursday, if not earlier.

WOMEN'S SPECIAL AT ROCHESTER, N. Y.

By International News Service.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 3. — The women's campaign special pulled into Rochester a few minutes after 6 a. m. today and was greeted by a committee of prominent Rochester women. Large touring cars at once whisked the fair "Votes for Hughes" campaigners to the Genesee Valley Club, where they were entertained at breakfast.

Later an auto tour of the city was made, thousands of voters gazing upon the women who are now well started on their country-wide campaign trip. The party left at 11 o'clock for Buffalo. At one point a crowd jeeringly heckled Miss Mary Antin about the "millionaire guests" on the train. Miss Antin was quick with this reply:

"Most of us are working women, and anyway, it takes all kinds of people to make a United States."

FISHERMAN SLAIN BY DENTIST

Dr. Ralph E. Baker, a prominent South Shore dentist with an office in Scituate, and who formerly practiced in Boston, shot and killed William M. Cushing, a lobster fisherman, in the village of Green Harbor, just outside of Marshfield, today.

Dr. Baker had been drinking heavily for several days; his wife left him because she was afraid of him a day or two ago; and two friends took from him only yesterday a shotgun, a quart of whiskey, and a number of hunting knives.

He and Cushing had always been close friends, and Cushing, a man of middle-age, was a lovable man, held in affectionate regard by every grown-up in Green Harbor, and loved like a brother by every little boy and girl.

Dr. Baker shot him three times, with bird charges using a repeating shotgun. Cushing was almost instantly killed.

FOLLOWED CUSHING.

Cushing had gone across from his cottage to that of Mrs. Hunt. Hunt owned the cottage in which Dr. Baker was living and had rented it to the dentist for the shooting season.

Dr. Baker followed Cushing across toward the back door of the Hunt cottage, carrying a shotgun. Nothing was said, and if Cushing saw Dr Baker he thought nothing of it.

Cushing was bound for the Hunt home, to speak to Mrs. Hunt about something. Mrs. Hunt was working in the kitchen, her children around her.

Cushing reached the back door, opened it, and had just said: "Mrs. Hunt——" when from behind him Dr. Baker fired.

The charge scattered somewhat. The bulk of it caught Cushing in the right side, but some pellets hit the door beside Cushing.

The wounded man lurched forward into the kitchen. Mrs. Hunt, from across the room looked at him in amazement, startled by the sound of the shot.

Cushing cried: "My God, Annie, Dr. Baker has shot me."

Mrs Hunt exclaimed: "Oh, it can't be!"

Then she saw the blood reddening his garments on the right side and started across the room to help him.

BAKER FIRES AGAIN.

At that moment Dr. Baker appeared at the door. He fired once, and as quickly as he could pump in another shell he shot again.

One shot almost tore Cushing's arm from his body. Both charges entered his back and sides. He fell limply, and it happened that he fell squarely

SPERRY IS FOUND BY AIRMEN

The first hunt by aeroplanes in the United States for a missing aviator took place off Boston Harbor today, when three machines searched the seas from Gloucester to Nantasket for Lawrence B. Sperry, New York aviator, who it was feared was drowned when naval officers lost trace of him after he left Lynn at 9 o'clock last night.

Sperry was found today tossing in his flying boat five miles off Nahant. He had spent the night on the water, being forced to descend through lack of fuel at 10:30 last night, after losing his way and flying in bewildered circles over the outer harbor for an hour and a half.

Clifford L. Webster of the Burgess plant at Marblehead and Gordon Prince of Manchester, brother of Morton Prince, the famous American aviator flying with the French army, discovered Sperry and swooped down to the water alongside him. They were flying in one of the new model Burgess self-balancing seaplanes.

CONFUSED BY LIGHTS.

Sperry dated gaily with them after their arrival and told them of his experience on the sea all night.

FRENCH MAIL REPLY TO U. S. PROTEST

Washington, Oct. 3.—The State Department today received a cable from the American Embassy in Paris stating that the French reply to the American protest against seizure of mails had been forwarded by mail to the French ambassador here, for delivery to Secretary of State Lansing. The note is identical with the British note now en route, which is expected to reach New York today on the British liner Pannonia.

Girl Advertises for Husband to Save Her Mother

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 3.—To save her aged and sickly mother from poorhouse or starvation, twenty-year-old Clara H. Bishoff, a strikingly pretty young woman, today appealed to the newspapers to aid her in the search for a husband. "It's my last resort," said the young woman today. "I have to do it for mother's sake. We are completely down and out." All she asks in return from any young man who may volunteer to marry her is that he provide a home for her mother and that she may have the right to investigate his character, employment and antecedents.

Mrs. Amelia Roper, widow of Albert J. Roper, the murdered florist, unexpectedly took the stand in the East Cambridge courthouse today in defence of her son, Albert J. Roper, Jr., charged with the slaying of his father, when she testified that the relations between father and son were very pleasant.

Dressed in black, she was a pathetic figure as she took the witness stand to aid the fight her son is making for his life.

She was one of the last witnesses to be called for the defence, which rested before court adjourned for the noon recess.

"What were the relations between your husband and your son?" Mrs. Roper was asked. "Very pleasant," she replied.

"Did they often play cards together. "Yes."

Mrs. Roper also testified that, shortly before Christmas she saw a $10 and a $5 gold piece in the possession of her husband, but that she had not seen the coins since that time.

It has been charged that Roper had

Mountain View, N. H., Oct. 3. —Discovery was made today that the bulkhead door leading to the basement of the cottage in which the body of murdered Mrs. Arlene Curry Small was left to be burned was unfastened during the fire which destroyed the cottage.

This discovery was immediately seized upon by the defence as a strong point in favor of Frederick L. Small, the Boston broker now held in Ossipee jail on a charge of wife murder.

Another arrest in the case was hinted as a possibility today by William S. Matthews, senior counsel for Small. New and startling evidence was promised for Small's hearing at Ossipee Thursday.

SECRET FIND.

While the defence was making confident prophecy today the prosecution made renewed search of the cottage ruins and found something which was deemed so important that it was immediately carried across to the toolhouse near the ruins and securely locked up. Fred E. Bean, the guard stationed at the scene by Sheriff Chandler, also keeps intruders away from the tool-house. The sheriff keeps secret about the new discovery.

The proof that the basement bulkhead door was unlocked through the fire was found on the door itself. It is the usual type of sloping double-leaf door, with a cross-bar hung upon the inside of one of the leaves. When the door is unlocked or unbarred the cross-bar hangs vertically. To fasten the door the bar is swung to horizontal position, with the free end dropping into a notch made to receive it.

The double door is of soft wood, varnished on the inside. The varnish was charred by the fire. But the bar was vertical when examined, and when it was swung off the vertical line it exposed a long ribbon of uncharred wood, showing that the bar had been vertical while the flames were licking at the unprotected surface of the doors.

WAY WAS OPEN.

This shows, the defence maintains, that a person could have gone in and out of the cottage by means of the bulkhead. Small, according to statement of Kennett, the hotel driver, left by the side door when he came out of the house shortly after 3 o'clock last Thursday afternoon to be driven to the 4.07 train.

The bulkhead is on the front side of the house, which faces the lake. The back of the house is on the side toward the road. Therefore anyone could enter or leave the house by the bulkhead unseen from the road.

The charred bundle of letters and papers found in the ruins is in the custody of Sheriff Chandler, who will turn it over to County Solicitor Hill. While the fire made the outside documents illegible it is hoped that some of the inner material can be deciphered.

The County Solicitor was at Marblehead, Mass., today. He was there on private affairs when the murder was discovered. He hurried here and devoted himself exclusively to the murder mystery until he felt at liberty today to make a flying trip back to Marblehead.

SEARCHING PARTY.

Sheriff Chandler, Deputy Sheriff George I. Philbrick, Dr. E. W. Hodgdon, who performed the autopsy, and Dr. B. J. Carleton, who first found traces of resin in the ruins, constituted the searching party at the ruins.

Report today from Ossipee Jail showed that Small was suffering physically and temperamentally. The institution is a combination jail and almshouse, all in charge of George Reed as keeper. The latter says that Small slept well last night, had lively appetite for breakfast and enjoyed exercise in the jail corridor after his morning meal.

The senior counsel, Mr. Matthews, says, regarding his expectation of Small being freed and another man arrested:

"I expect Small to be set free at the hearing at Ossipee Thursday. We have evidence with which we positively expect to convict another man.

"For one thing, there are men of murderous type traveling about as agents and peddlers. They sell small wares from door to door.

"Some of these men will kill for the mere sake of killing. The combination of the strangling rope, the bullet wound and the blow on the skull shows the work of a person of this type, such a one as loves to strangle. Why should Small do this?

"Mrs. Small was nearly killed by blows first, then was strangled and shot. She was evidently dead when shot.

"Then, take that talk about the kerosene can. An empty five-gallon can, which had been filled the day before, does not point to Small. Kerosene is good, any chemist will tell you, for an immediate fire, but not particularly for one that is to start hours later. When freshly turned out it will not ignite in a cylinder until the heat is 150 degrees and it has been exposed for hours. It is questionable if a candle would ignite it.

"It is well known that, for premeditated fires, bladders of gasoline are used. It is also known that in such cases a thin rubber pouch has been successfully used. Then a candle graduated to size, according to the time needed for it to burn, could be lighted. The bag of gasoline is placed against the base of the candle. When the flame burns down to it, it would scatter the surrounding inflammables."

Much interest was evinced here in the story of the experiences of the four McInnes men on the night of the fire. These men, according to the county officials, have been interviewed by a New Hampshire investigator.

The men were spending their vacation near the Small cottage and were among the first to reach the burning cottage. The footprints were described by Dr. C. E. Derby, a dentist, one of the four men, who is quoted as having said:

HUNT FOR WOMAN.

"We were in bed when we were awakened by the fire. We could hear a constant popping as if rifles were being fired. We rowed a half mile across the lake, and as we did so we saw a flash of flame as if there had been an explosion.

"When we arrived at the cottage it was all in flames. We assisted two men we found there in a hunt for Mrs. Small.

"The two men believed that she was either burned with the cottage or had escaped in her night clothing and was hiding in the bushes on account of her scant attire. We shouted and hunted around to try to find her.

"While we were doing so, Glover and I found the footprints on the beach. By the light of our lantern we traced them and found they were trodden over in some places by the footprints of a dog.

"The human footprints were of bare feet and were slim and long, and must have been a woman's. We finally lost them near the water when they became faint. We returned home to our camp shortly after midnight."

According to the authorities, the Smalls had no dog, and the officials said they could as yet throw no light on the presence of the footprints on the beach.

The general belief is that the footprints may be connected with the slaying of Mrs. Small.

FIND LETTERS IN RUINS.

Mrs. Elizabeth Curry and Miss Norma Curry, mother and sister of the murdered woman, were expected to be interviewed in Concord today by Attorney-General James P. Tuttle. The attorney-general planned to question them concerning the past life of Small, who is locked up in the jail at Ossipee. Their testimony is expected to play a prominent part in the State's case against the suspect.

A bundle of letters found among the ruins of the Small home will also be examined today in the hope that their contents may shed additional light upon the mystery.

There are several features of the case which the State and county officials who are handling the prosecution have been unable to explain. The government investigators frankly admit their inability to prove how the fire in the cottage was started and to clear up several other important details.

LOCKED ON INSIDE.

The defence will undoubtedly have George Kennett, the hotel clerk, repeat his statement that he saw Frederick L. Small slam the side door of his cottage when he came out last Thursday afternoon to start for Boston, and that he is certain Small did not lock the door.

The defence believes that the back door was locked later on the inside, that the lock with the key inserted and locked which was found in the debris Saturday is evidence that some one in the cottage locked the door after Small had departed and was on his way to Boston.

Meanwhile today the various inquiries in the case continued. Every store in town where resin might have been sold has been visited and no one has been found who remembers having made such a sale. This is in connection with the resinous substance found upon the body.

It is said that the articles gathered from the debris will be examined by an expert to determine whether there is any evidence among them of firesetting apparatus.

Small was reported in good spirits today. His appetite is good and he has been given a change of clothing.

HEAR CHARGES AGAINST LOAN BROKER

Andrew C. Minihan, president of Best & Co., Inc., loan brokers of No. 35 Court street, appeared at a private hearing before the supervisor of loan agencies at the State House today, charged with violating the spirit of the law pertaining to the conduct of loan agencies. The case was taken under advisement. The license of the company expired October 1 and has not been renewed.

The complainant was Mrs. John Drohan, who was represented at the hearing today by Reginald H. Smith of the Legal Aid Society.

The story as told by Mr. Smith revealed misfortune after misfortune that had befallen Mrs. Drohan and of her attempt to gain financial relief by obtaining a loan from the brokers.

EARNS BUT $5 A WEEK.

Mrs. Drohan makes five dollars a week as a washwoman. But she cannot work every day, and her husband too has had hard luck. When he has steady employment he makes but $5 a week, and employment with him has been by no means steady.

To make a bad matter worse, Mrs. Drohan's mother, who is old and lives in Ireland, is in danger of being evicted from her little home.

The daughter determined to send a small sum of money back to Ireland to help her mother.

As Mr. Smith told the story today she went to Best & Company, Inc., to borrow ten dollars. Once there Mr. Smith said she was made liable for an additional ten dollars, representing two shares of stock issued by the company. There was also a three per cent monthly interest charge to be paid, which is authorized by the law on small loans.

SAYS NOTE WAS RETURNED.

Mr. Minihan said that his company has not made a practice of compelling clients to pay for the stock.

In this particular case he said he returned to Mr. Smith the woman's note for $10, upon which there was due two months' interest. Two payments of $1 each had been made on the principal.

U. S. FINDS WAY TO END BOLL WEEVIL

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 3.—After twelve years of patient scientific investigation the Department of Agriculture believes it has at last discovered a method of destroying the boll weevil, the parasite which the department only yesterday reported has caused this season's cotton crop practically to be a failure.

The department is keeping the new method secret pending final absolute proof of its efficiency. For two years past tests have shown phenomenal success, according to department officials. One additional year of experimentation is desired.

ALLOW CHELSEA 'BREAKERS' TO CARRY GUNS

Chelsea residents were amazed today when it became known that strike-breakers and detectives at the plant of the A. G. Walton Shoe Company have been given permission to carry revolvers by Police Chief James F. White.

About 250 strike-breakers are employed at the plant in an effort to break the strike of 1,500 shoe workers. The strike has been featured by stone-throwing, shooting and assaults. Chelsea residents fear that a serious clash may occur between the strikers and armed strike-breakers.

That strike-breakers are carrying weapons became known after strikers had stoned an automobile carrying strike-breakers, and the strike-breakers had drawn revolvers and fired into the crowd. When police tried to arrest the men who fired shots, the latter showed their permits to carry weapons.

Six strikers were arrested, however, and arraigned in the Chelsea court today. Their cases were continued until October 4 and 6.

It was freely declared by strikers today that, if strike-breakers can carry revolvers, they will do the same.

Four other men arrested in connection with trouble at the plant were also at the Chelsea court today and their cases were also continued.

Boston Backward Zueblin Declares

Charles Zueblin, author and lecturer, speaking before the Women's City Club, said it would be impossible for such a scandal as that presented by the Allison birth control case to have occurred in Los Angeles, where they provide an attorney to prove a man innocent. He urged that we follow the example set by the Western city.

Other than her parks and libraries, Boston is sadly behind other American cities, according to Mr. Zueblin.

PARALYSIS AT HIGH MARK

Infantile paralysis equalled its highest record in the number of cases reported to the State Board of Health in the twenty-four hours ending 9 o'clock today. There were thirty-nine new cases reported, making the total, since schools opened generally, seventy-three cases in two days, and the number of cases in the Bay State this year 3,690.

Of these new cases reported to the State Board today, nine were in Boston, making Boston's total in two days thirty-one new cases.

Six more new cases were reported from Holyoke, making that city's total seventy-three since September 1. Surgeon L. D. Fricke of the Federal Health Service went to Holyoke to assist the health authorities there to check the spread of the disease. This city is considered the most infested by the disease in the State.

Two new cases were reported from Amesbury, one, its first, in Grafton and five in Quincy, making the September and October total seventeen.

The State Department of Health today reported these thirty-nine cases of infantile paralysis:

Amesbury— —— Klein, No. 127 Market street; —— Banks, No. 2 Prospect street.

Beverly—Adell R. Bona, No. 25 Mill street.

Lynn—Frank Aylwyn, No. 50 Wheeler street.

Somerville—Two cases, names withheld by local officials.

Waltham—Baby Gray, Hall's court; Leslie Dunlop, No. 47 Charles street.

Athol—Thomas Lavin, Main street.

Boston—Nine cases.

CASES IN BOSTON.

The Boston Health Department reported nine cases in the past twenty-four hours:

Myer Fox, four, No. 70 Brighton street; Thomas Prokeep, nine months, No. 56 Billerica street, West End.

Grace Green, four, No. 15 St. Joseph street, West Roxbury.

Winfred M. Doucette, three, No. 14 Woolson street, Mattapan.

Raymond Sammett, two years, rear No. 2 Wolcott square; Charles Hubbard, fifty-five, No. 9 Beacon street; Ruth Hanson, three, No. 92 Dedham street, Hyde Park.

Dorothy Course, four, No. 451 Medford street, Charlestown.

Mr. Hammett, at the age of fifty-five, is the oldest person to be afflicted by the plague of 1916.

The city's list now is a total of 515 cases of infantile paralysis in Boston since July 1.

AMUSEMENT BAN ON.

Because of the gravity of the infantile paralysis epidemic in the city of Boston, mayor Curley today declined to rescind his recent proclamation forbidding children under sixteen of age from attending places of public amusement.

When the order was issued Mayor Curley had said that the ban would be lifted "if the epidemic abates."

Mayor Curley announced today that the order is still in effect, and that he has instructed Health Commissioner Mahoney to conduct a special investigation of the situation and to report directly to him.

Dr. Mahoney reports to Commissioner Hall tomorrow morning. Hall will report to mayor Curley today or tomorrow, at which time they will decide whether to lift or continue the ban.

Thirty-one cases of infantile paralysis are reported today, as against 39 reported October 1. The daily average for the month is higher even than in September.

20,000 Pupils Out of Boston Schools

George H. Burgess, secretary to Superintendent of Schools Dyer, today declared he estimated that 20,000 pupils were absent from the Boston schools on the opening day.

"There are usually twelve thousand absent on the first day of school, which indicates that only eight thousand stayed away on account of infantile paralysis," he said.

"The compilation of attendance figures on the opening day is now being made, but the exact number of pupils who registered on the opening day will not be known until tomorrow or the next day.

"There is never 100 per cent. of the possible enrolment on opening day, so that the rough estimate we have been able to make of the number of pupils who stayed away indicates that the total number of absentees on account of the infantile paralysis scare is not as great as reported in the morning newspapers.

CANVASS BEING MADE.

"There is no one district affected, as far as we know, but a canvass is being made of the various school centres to get this information. Superintendent Dyer is today visiting the various schools and inquiring into necessary details concerning school attendance.

"Figures are fast coming in, but we have no totals of the number of absentees. We figure not more than 8,000 are really out."

The total number of children entitled to attend this session is between 112,000 and 115,000, according to Secretary Burgess. He declared he had no knowledge of any infantile paralysis cases being discovered among school children.

In towns outside of Boston heavy decrease in school attendance were reported. The decreases in all cases were greater in the primary and kindergarten grades than in the higher.

The children that did enroll were all examined. They were made to pass a school doctor or nurse with their arms raised above their heads. Any child at all affected by the disease is unable to raise his arms above his shoulders, according to the doctors.

In East Boston, where fifty-one cases have been reported by the Board of Health, attendance was extremely discouraging at the morning session. At the Samuel Adams and Chapman schools only 30 per cent. of the pupils reported at the opening hour. The night of these few children going to school, however, seems to have reassured the parents of others, for the attendance grew to 75 per cent. at these two schools yesterday afternoon.

HIGH SCHOOLS NOT AFFECTED.

The higher grades do not appear to have been affected by the spread of the disease during the past two weeks. At the Roxbury High School, located in a district where twenty-seven cases were reported by the Board of Health, Headmaster Thomas reported an increase from 2,069 last year to 2,115 this year. A similar increase was reported in the South Boston High School.

Attendance at the evening schools is reported normal. Registration will continue in the evening schools tonight and Thursday evenings, so figures will not be complete until the end of the week.

AVIATORS FIND SPERRY AT SEA

It was found that the after compartment of his flying boat was leaking slightly, but otherwise was in good condition.

"Soon after I left Lynn, I became confused over the harbor light," said Sperry. I flew around the outer harbor a number of times but couldn't get my bearings. It was dark and I couldn't read my compass. I descended to the water to get my bearings, if possible, but found I couldn't rise again. I had run out of gasoline."

A Rockport granite tug was hailed by Sperry and took him in tow to Nantasket.

A destroyer and two tugs were sent out from the Charlestown navy yard early today to search for Sperry, and the fact that they steamed along the coast for several hours without finding a trace of the missing man while the aeroplanes located him in from twenty to thirty minutes after beginning the search, demonstrated in the opinion of aviation circles the value of aeroplanes. There are no aeroplanes in the naval service at Boston.

The other two aeroplanes searching for the missing aviator were the Burgess tractor carrying Frank Russell and Elwood Doherty of the Burgess company, and a machine from the Sturtevant aeroplane company. The Burgess machine, driven by Webster of the Burgess company, is owned by Eben S. Draper of Hopedale, but is being kept at Marblehead.

SEARCHED SEA FOR HOURS.

Webster was handling this craft, and Gordon Prince was the observer. While the other Burgess machine driven by Russell searched the sea from Nahant to Gloucester, they went south between Nahant and Nantasket. After a few minutes search, Prince saw Sperry's craft bobbing on the water.

Two motor boats from the Burgess plant searched the sea until 1 a. m. today for the missing aviator, before the aeroplanes started out on their successful search. Other boats joined in the search at daybreak, and wireless calls flashed from the navy yard to all coastwise steamers to be on the look-out for Sperry.

The navy yard did not know that Sperry had been found until they were notified by the Burgess company. They immediately got in touch by wireless with the destroyer and tugs joining in the search.

Sperry was alone when he started out last night. He had flown from Amityville, N. Y., to Boston with Captain Leo A. Dewey, U. S. A., a member of General Wood's staff, and under the orders of General Wood "bombs" were dropped on forts along Long Island Sound, New Bedford and the forts of Boston Harbor. They landed at the Charlestown navy yard yesterday afternoon. Captain Dewey left the craft at that point, and Sperry went on alone.

Attorney Wilson, counsel for Roper, cross-examined today that Professor Munsterberg of Harvard, who has been in the courtroom during much of the trial, would not testify for the defence.

'THIRD HOUSE' IS FLAYED BY LAWRENCE

Chester B. Lawrence goes Matthew Hale, the Progressive leader, one better in stripping the hide from the Beacon Hill lobby. Mr. Lawrence, who is the Prohibition candidate for Governor, says:

"Matthew Hale, the Progressive leader, said that the Legislature is in the control of two men, Jake Ward, well and Chrissy Jones. It may be that these two men are spokesmen for the big corporation interests, but the machine has its grip on allthe politicians in all parties. The insurance interests, the liquor interests and all other selfish interests can get what they want on Beacon Hill at any time."

Mr Lawrence made this declaration in announcing that in his campaign he would urge the voters to support the constitutional convention and the initiative and referendum. He said:

THEIR ONLY HOPE.

"The people of this State need the initiative and referendum to break up the machine and the pernicious lobby that now control the Legislature of Massachusetts.

"The voters at the State election will have an opportunity to decide whether we shall have a constitutional convention next year. It is their duty to vote for the constitutional convention because this will provide the best opportunity in this generation for the people to secure the initiative and referendum and take unto themselves their own rights, which have been so badly abused by the machine-controlled Legislature."

Mr. Lawrence said that through the initiative the people can pass the good bills that the Legislature has refused to pass, and through the referendum they can defeat the bad bills which the Legislature writes onto the statute books for the benefit of the big corporations and the vested interests.

"The Legislature is under the absolute control of a powerful machine," Mr. Lawrence asserted. "There are, of course, some members who vote as they choose on certain bills, but when it comes to a final showdown they do vote for the machine dictates.

"I believe in the initiative and referendum because through it the people can break up the unscrupulous interests that control the Legislature. It is time that the people asserted their rights. If the people will only vote for a constitutional convention, we will have a good fighting chance to get the initiative and referendum. And when we do the lobbyists will leave Beacon Hill like rats leaving a sinking ship."

URGE NEW CONVENTION.

William Shaw, who was the candidate of the Prohibition party last year, was an earnest advocate of the initiative and referendum.

Frederick W. Mansfield, in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor, declared himself in favor of the initiative and referendum. Charles H. Cole, who also was defeated by Mr. Mansfield, was also enthusiastically in favor of it.

It will be remembered that Democrats from all the big political parties have been clamoring for a convention for years to secure its passage through the proposed constitutional convention route. Even Democratic Governor Walsh and Foss, Charles Sumner Hamlin, Democratic Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, Richard J. Rothwell of the Chamber of Commerce, Professor Lewis J. Johnson of Harvard University, President Charles W. Eliot of the Commonwealth Shoe & Leather Company, Mayor Curley, former Mayor Fitzgerald, Attorney Wolfman of Boston meeting fame, Henry Sterling, legislative agent of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor, Treasurer Lawrence G. Brooks of the Progressive State Committee and Bernard M. Allen, Latin instructor at Phillips-Andover Academy, have all declared for it.

MAY PROSECUTE BIG GAMBLING TRUST

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Federal prosecution of the members of a gigantic gambling trust, headquarters of which are in Chicago, seemed probable today following a conference in the court of Federal Judge Landis, which showed that the syndicate has been able to fix all of the baseball races of the country, and that its daily profits run into thousands of dollars. Chicago in the center of the band, book betting on horse races through-out the country, it was charged, is permitted. Odds on the races are fixed and information is sent over privately leased telephone wires.

Miss IDA M. PARKER, Brookline's policewoman, photographed while on duty today.

POLICEWOMAN GOES 'ON THE JOB'

Brookline's policewoman—Miss Ida M. Parker, Wellesley, '05,—went on duty for the first time today.

She does not carry a club or wear a uniform and she said today she hoped she wouldn't have to arrest anybody, although she has a full policeman's authority in any emergency that may arise. But she wears no badge.

If you're in Brookline and see a woman about six feet tall, broad-shouldered and wearing a light gray check suit and black velvet hat, stepping along briskly, be careful. It's Patrolman Miss Parker. And she may clap you into the cooler!

"My duties are principally along corrective and preventative lines," said the Wellesley-accented policewoman today. "My work will be essentially with girls and women, and if I find anything wrong in a girl's conduct I shall try to remedy it without resort to a policeman's usual methods. But, of course, I can arrest anybody I find breaking the laws, but I hope I won't have to.

Miss Parker reported at the Brookline police station yesterday, but she was not sworn in until today, when she went under oath before Town Clerk Edward W. Baker in the town hall as a special officer. She was appointed by the Board of Selectmen last August. Haverhill is the only other community in Massachusetts to have had a woman police officer.

"I have no views to express on conditions in Brookline at this time, but I shall have at the end of my three months' probationary employment," she said, as she started out about 10 a. m.

MAY PROSECUTE ON BREAD INCREASE

New York, Oct. 3.—The state of official inquiry is being dug deep into the bread situation. Indications are that prosecutions of several persons will result from the recent increase in prices. Action will be decided upon, it is the chief basis of the investigation.

FIGHT DUE OVER LOMASNEY'S IRISH PLANK

Chieftains in the Bay State democracy are today selling their plans to defeat Martin M. Lomasney and his "Irish freedom" plank at the Springfield convention next Saturday.

Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor Thomas F. Riley, who is a Hyde Parkville, declared today that if Lomasney failed to force the Irish plank through the convention, "I'll shatter it, if it's the last thing I ever do."

The Ward 8 leader refuses to say whether he will submit the plank and fight for the convention title as appear, as he did in St. Louis last June.

"I can't tell my plans," said Mr Lomasney, "it would weaken my fight."

But Francis J. Finneran, editor of The Forester, who would have been a candidate against Riley if the mails hadn't played him a mean trick on his nomination papers, he says, will jump into the breach if Lomasney desists.

TO INTRODUCE PLANK.

"I'm not a delegate, but I'll be at that convention by proxy, and I'll introduce the Irish plank if it's the last thing I ever do," is the Forester promise that is so baleful to the leaders.

They fear the plank. If it is adopted they may lose the Protestant vote, they fear. If it is killed their candidates for the governorship and the votes of those who take the Irish matter more seriously than Democratic politics.

The leaders are looking for a permanent chairman of the convention who will "play safe." That is to say, "This is an American, not an Irish convention, and that plank has no place in the platform of this body."

It was said today that General Colebrook, permanent chairman of Ohio's were picking former Attorney General Thomas J. Boynton.

At the Ohio convention Ollie James rolled out Mr Lomasney's "free Irish" plank and the convention adjourned while Marlin Wolf was running up and down the main aisle lately trying to attract the attention of the chairman.

MANSFIELD AGAINST IT.

Frederick W. Mansfield, the Democratic nominee for Governor, today came out flat-footed against the proposed constitutional convention. Matthew Hale, the Progressive leader, and the machine-controlled Republicans are quietly "sending" the G. O. P.

The passage of the convention will adopt the initiative and referendum and break up the rule of the lobby, it is the driver's seat on Beacon Hill," Mr Hale said.

At the Democratic wing of the G. O. P. will urge an open declaration for the constitutional convention. The Democratic leaders believe they will ask the convention to "vote with parties" and thus will give the voters a chance to decide whether they want a convention and let it go at that.

Republicans have decided to hold the fight before the polls. It has been decided by them yesterday, but one short Parker's still be used for the overdone. The Democrats will centre their activities in the Hotel Worthington at Springfield.

Latest reports today indicate that the "Irish Freedom-ites" of the Democratic party will contest any indorsement of President Wilson.

Mr. Finneran is authority for the statement that an anti-Wilson fight will be started in the convention.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Miss Blanche Ross, a well known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixes at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray-haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, and relieves itching and dandruff."

2 'BREMENS' HAVE BEEN CAPTURED, SAYS CABOT

The latest Bostonian to return from France, Dr. Hugh Cabot, says—and he is "as mortally sure of it as any man can be"—that both the German submarines named Bremen have been captured by the British, that the first one was taken several months ago, and the second last month, and that British officers believe the second U-liner was simply the Deutschland renamed "Bremen."

Other statements by Dr. Cabot include these points:

That the allies will take Peronne and Bapaume before cold weather.

That Great Britain has a new army of 1,500,000 men in training for a Spring drive.

That the allies neither hope nor intend to drive the Germans out of Belgium.

That the allies' aim is to keep the German line as long as it is, the question being how many Germans can be killed off with the least sacrifice.

STOPPED CHANNEL TRAFFIC.

Dr. Cabot is back at his home on Marlboro street today after being in charge of the Harvard Hospital Union "somewhere in France" for six months. He said, on arriving home:

"Both German submarines have been captured by the British. The second one was captured about the middle of September. On account of my official position I cannot tell the exact date. I remember it particularly because on that day traffic was stopped on the channel. After it was captured some of the British officers said they believed it was the Deutschland renamed. The first Bremen was captured several months ago.

SURE OF CAPTURE.

"I had to smile when I heard, since I landed, that a lifebuoy marked 'Bremen' had been picked up on the coast of Maine. Curiously enough, after the Bremen had been captured, some British officers said to me, 'You will probably hear of some lifebuoys marked "Bremen" being picked up in the Atlantic Ocean the next week or so.' That is one of the English ways of having fun with the Germans.

"They gave one or more of the Bremen's life buoys to captains sailing to America with instructions to throw them overboard, knowing somebody would pick them up. In this way they keep the Germans guessing.

"Am I sure both the Bremens have been captured? As mortally sure of it as any man can be."

After saying that the allies do not hope or intend to drive the Germans out of Belgium, Dr. Cabot went on:

"That would be extremely foolish, for you must realize that if the Germans were forced out of Belgium it would release 1,500,000 German soldiers that could be used somewhere else. The aim of the allies is to keep the German line about as long as it is and keep forcing it here and there and banging at it all along the line, killing or incapacitating as many Germans as possible.

WILL FIGHT ALL WINTER.

"The question with the allies is: how many Germans can be killed off with the least sacrifice? At the beginning of the battle of the Somme the British losses were very heavy. That was true the first month, but it has not been true since. The German losses have been greater since then.

"The reason for this was that the Germans at the beginning had three strongly fortified trenches, one behind the other, which had to be taken. Since then and since they have been fighting on more even terms the story of losses has been different.

"Now they have only lines of trenches—temporary affairs—that are not connected, as were the old trenches. This is true of both sides and these trenches are reached from above—have to be supplied in the open.

"They are not building concrete trenches any longer on either side and I doubt if any such trenches will be built this Winter. I think there will be fighting all through the Winter.

HAVE LOST SKY CONTROL.

"One thing is very sure—the Germans have lost the jump in the rushes. A year ago the Germans were always first to rush. Now it is the other way, and just as in football, the fellows who get the jump in the rush win the game—as a rule.

"Another thing that has been fatal to the Germans is that they have lost their supremacy in the air. The British and French took that away from them last June, and since then the Germans have not been able to use their big guns. No German aeroplane dares come within four or five miles of the allied lines, and the aeroplanes of the allies go about where they please.

"That is why the Germans can't use their big guns and the allies can use theirs. These big guns use smoke powder, and the moment one is fired from behind the German lines the allies know just where it is and put it out of commission. The aeroplane service of the allies is what does it, and the Germans can't find the British and French big guns."

WAR SUMMARY

The Rumanians have crossed the Danube River, between Rustchuk and Tutrakan, and gained a foothold on the south bank, according to both German and Rumanian bulletins today.

This threatens the flank and rear of the entire Teutonic army in the Dobrudja, and at the same time the Rumanians announce a strong attack against the Teutonic lines south of Trajan's Wall, in which they claim to have driven back the centre and one flank.

Until the situation has developed further, it is impossible to say just how important the Rumanian crossing of the Danube will turn out to be. The first task of a Rumanian army here, however, must be to capture or isolate either Rustchuk or Tutrakan. Without possession of one or the other of these fortresses they cannot safely advance southward into Bulgaria.

Rustchuk is probably the stronger, as it lies in Bulgarian territory, while Tutrakan was captured from the Rumanians by the Bulgarians early in the war. But Rustchuk, on the other hand, is the more valuable prize, because it is the terminus of two railroad lines, one running southeast to Varna, and the other southwest through the heart of Bulgaria.

When Rumania entered the war it was natural to expect a Rumanian drive from the Dobrudja into Bulgaria. Instead, the Bulgarians, with German help, threw an army far into the Dobrudja.

With the Teutonic allies in that position the first step to a successful Russian and Rumanian southward drive would be a frontal attack, combined with a crossing of the river in the rear of the Teutonic allies.

These two moves have been made. Therefore, the present situation has every appearance of being the beginning of a Russian and Rumanian drive through Bulgaria toward Constantinople. Its success would be almost decisive of the war except as to Germany herself; its failure would not greatly change the present situation. If the attempt is pushed home we shall see some interesting fighting in the next few weeks.

The Germans report that a tremendous attack by the allies in the Somme region was completely repulsed. The French report slight gains east of Bouchavesnes as of yesterday, and a determined counter attack by the German forces in the same region as occurring today. They say the counter attack was repulsed.

There is hard fighting on the Russian front; but the Teutonic allies have asserted themselves there, and their counter-attacks recovered what ground was lost the day before, and made a considerable number of Russian prisoners.

Serbians, French and British claim some successes in the fighting in the Salonica region, but they do not even claim any success of importance or real significance.

TEUTONS CHECKED ON COMBLES LINE

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.

Paris, Oct. 3.—Strong counter-attacks have been undertaken by the Germans in an effort to prevent the French from advancing against Bapaume from the south. The French War Office in its official communication today states that the Germans assaulted the French in St. Pierre Vaast woods, north of Rancourt, but were flung back with heavy losses.

An artillery duel was in progress north of Rancourt all night.

St. Pierre Vaast woods is two miles east of Combles.

Bulgaria Admits Gains for the Allies.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Sofia, Oct. 3.—Gains for the allies in Greek Macedonia were admitted by the Bulgarian War Office today. In the sector of Kalamakcalan heights the Bulgarians withdrew to avoid unnecessary losses under the heavy artillery fire of the Serbians, retiring to their main positions in the Moglenican mountains.

On the eastern end of the front, in the Struma valley, the Bulgarians retired from the villages of Karadjakeui, Jenikeui and Mavrokeui, but the last two were subsequently re-occupied in counter attacks.

MOTHER LOVE AIDS SON IN TRENCHES

It Brings Relief to Boy Standing His Watch Deep in Mud.

Once upon a time, only a few months after this terrible world war had begun, Private Bailey, a soldier in the ranks, had stood for days in the trenches "somewhere in France." The cold rains soaked him to the skin; the mud was deep. He had had no rest. Weary and aching with rheumatic pains, he recalled the faith his mother had in Sloan's Liniment. He asked for it in his next letter home. A large bottle was immediately sent him and a few applications killed the pain, once more he was able to stand the severe exposure. He shared this wonderful muscle-soother with his comrades, and they all agreed it was the greatest "reinforcement" that had ever come to their rescue. At your druggist, 25c, 50c and $1.00 a bottle.

RUMANIANS GET ACROSS DANUBE

Rumania by way of Dobrudja province.

Rumania's latest stroke may have a powerful influence upon operations in the Balkans by compelling the Bulgarians to weaken the army which is operating against the allies in Macedonia.

This counter blow also offsets the results of the German gain in Transylvania, and may compel the Germans and Austro-Hungarians to send reinforcements to prevent a drive into the heart of Bulgaria.

An advance by the Rumanians into Bulgaria menaces the line of communications between the central empires and Turkey. Both Germany and Austria have stood by their military operations of the past year that they regard this line as vital, and are determined to hold it open at all hazards.

It is believed by military experts in London that the army of Germans, Bulgarians and Turks under Von Mackensen must take up a new position at once to meet the Rumanians, which will mean another retreat for the conqueror of Serbia.

In Galicia the Rumanians are still pounding away at the Austro-German and Turkish lines in the renewal of their drive against Lemberg.

Night Quiet on the British Front.

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 3.—The night was quiet on that section of the Somme front held by the British, the War Office announced today in the following official statement:

"The night was quiet on the front south of the Ancre. South of Loos we successfully raided German trenches.

BERLIN ELATED BY BALKAN VICTORY

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville wireless, Oct. 3. — "The battle of Hermannstadt shows the offensive force of the Central powers and proves that they still hold the initiative in the Rumanian theatre of war, where, according to British and French indications, a decision may be reached in the war."

The foregoing is contained in a resume of operations in the Rumanian theatre of war issued today by the official Overseas News Agency. The balance of the article follows:

"The battle of Hermannstadt was a splendid example of the envelopment of an enemy army. It was a masterly plan of General von Falkenhayn, brilliantly carried out by German and Austro-Hungarian troops.

RUMANIANS ROUTED.

"The Rumanians sustained a frontal attack while at the same time strong cavalry forces advancing from the north blocked the roads to the east. An army corps commanded by General von Krafft pushed ahead from the Grausony Valley and routed the Rumanians at Rothenthurm pass, attacking them in the rear and on the flank.

"Rumanian counter attacks followed immediately, but were too late, as Alpine troops had already captured Rothenthurm pass and were active also in the main assaults. The Rumanians were thus attacked on three sides and were pushed towards Fogaras mountains, which are made up of steep peaks and narrow ravines. It was impossible for large detachments to make their way through this country nor could transports be moved. The Rumanians were thus completely pulverised between Hermannstadt and Fogaras mountains and suffered the most sanguinary losses.

GUNS ABANDONED.

"They were forced to abandon all their artillery and railroad rolling stock, aeroplanes and other materials. Up to the present three thousand prisoners have been counted, but others are coming in. The dispersed Rumanian detachments fled into the forests. The German allies are now south of Rothenthurm pass, where they have repulsed Rumanian counter attacks."

The foregoing indicates that General von Falkenhayn's Austro-German army has invaded Rumania on the north, as Rothenthurm is on the border of Hungary and Rumania.

Serbians Take Bulgar Trenches

By International News Service.

Paris, Oct. 3. — The gigantic engagement in Greek Macedonia continues, with soldiers of five nations engaged. The War Office report on Balkan operations today chronicled the capture of first line trenches of the Bulgarians and also a Bulgarian battery near Kalmakcalan Heights by the Serbians.

Furthermore, it reported the repulses of two Bulgarian attacks. The Bulgars suffered heavy losses. Troops of England, France and Serbia are locked in battle with the Bulgars and Germans.

The text of the statement follows:

"On the left bank of the Struma two new Bulgarian counter-attacks against the positions conquered by the British troops on September 30 were repulsed with bloody losses for the enemy.

"In the region of the Cherna River the Serbian forces continued to make progress on the western and eastern slopes of the high crest northeast of Kamakcalan.

"The Serbian infantry yesterday captured the enemy's first line trenches on the heights of Starkovgrob. Another Bulgarian battery was captured. Bad weather continues."

HUB DENTIST KILLS HIS FRIEND

on top of Mrs. Hunt's infant child, which was playing on the floor.

The child had been only interested in the first shot. When Cushing staggered toward where it was busy on the floor it looked up cheerfully to welcome a good friend. Then the second and third shots toppled Cushing forward like a falling tree, and the baby screamed with fright as the man's weight crushed it down.

Mrs. Hunt screamed, dropped on her knees and grasped Cushing's bleeding, lifeless body to one side, freeing her baby.

Dr. Baker, when he saw Cushing fall, turned calmly and stepped out into the yard, and paced up and down there like a sentinel.

Mrs. Hunt went to a window and screamed for help; then suddenly jumped to the front door and ran out and telephoned first to Dr. C. W. Bartlett and Dr. Strong at the Marshfield Hospital. She then telephoned Sheriff Porter at Plymouth, and he sent Deputy Sheriff Joseph C. Collingwood hurriedly to Green Harbor.

BABY UNHURT.

Mrs. Hunt, having telephoned for help, hurried back to her home, saw that the baby was happy again and unhurt, and went out into the backyard.

Dr. Baker was still stalking up and down there. Charles Hunt, a boy and the son of Mrs. Hunt, stood at one side watching the physician with eyes in which awe and admiration fought with fear and horror.

Mrs. Hunt went up to Dr. Baker, her eyes blazing.

"Ralph," she said, "Do you realize what you have done; that you have shot poor Will?"

Dr. Baker nodded. "Yes, I know it. That's what I'm here for. And if you call for help, I'll shoot you."

He thust her away, then turned to the boy as though pleased by the attention which the boy was watching his movements.

"Don't be afraid, sonny," he said in a kindly tone. "I won't hurt you."

A moment later Henry Calver and William Sprague, two Green Harbor officers, arrived and came to where Dr. Baker was still striding up and down in the yard behind the Hunt home.

WARNED MEN BACK.

They attempted to seize him. "Get back, there," he warned them, and brought his shot gun to the ready.

They hesitated for an instant, and the doctor backed away to his own cottage and went in and slammed the door behind him. The two local officers were content to wait till the deputy sheriff should arrive. They took stations where they could make sure Dr. Baker did not leave his house.

Dr. Bartlett and Dr. Strong arrived, but Cushing was dead before they reached the Hunt cottage.

A little later the deputy, Collingwood, came. They said:

"He's in his cottage there, with his shotgun."

Collingwood nodded. "All right," he said; and then he lighted a cigar, strolled across to the Baker cottage, up the steps, across the veranda and pushed open the door.

Those watching saw him disappear inside. They waited, dreading to hear the sound of that shotgun again.

It was some minutes before anything happened.

BAKER HANDCUFFED.

Then the deputy appeared. Dr. Baker handcuffed beside him. The deputy had come by automobile. He helped Dr. Baker into the machine and they drove off to the Plymouth county jail.

Dr. and Mrs. Baker arrived in Green Harbor two weeks ago, and leased the Hunt cottage for the shooting season.

PROVIDENCE GIRL ACCUSES WOMAN AND 4 IN 'SLAVE' CASE

Providence, Oct. 3.—The police of East Providence are searching for four men and a woman, who are charged by Prudence Hern, a fifteen-year-old high school girl of Riverside, with drugging her and enticing her from her home September 10.

James R. Hern, the girl's father, said today that he would appeal to the federal authorities if the police do not prosecute the persons his daughter charges with the crime.

Prudence Hern is one of the many girls who disappeared in a mysterious manner from their homes, all of whom are believed to be victims of an organized band of white slavers who have done a thriving business in this city.

While the police of the entire State of Rhode Island have been searching for the girl, she has been staying at the home of Michael A. Grimshaw, the chief of police of Danielson, Ct., in a dazed condition and unable until today to give any connected account of what happened to her since she went away from home almost a month ago.

FOUND GIRL IN ROAD.

Chief Grimshaw found the girl sitting by the roadside in Danielson. He took her to his home, where she stayed for twenty days, unable to give any account of her wanderings.

At first she said her name was Mary Brown, and that her home was in New York.

For almost three weeks Chief Grimshaw tried in vain to solve the mystery. The girl was believed to be in a state of aphasia. And then of a sudden her brain seemed to clear, and she told her real name and was taken to her home.

Today, at her home in Riverside, the girl told, so far as she could recall, what happened to her from the time she left her home September 10.

"I went out to a nearby store with my little sister, Gladys," she said.

"I had thirty-five cents with me. On the way I met a woman I knew, a Miss ——. She suggested that an automobile ride would do me good.

"I told Gladys I was not feeling well and to wait for me, as I would go right home. I remember the woman shaking a handkerchief and I felt dizzy. I looked about for my sister and she started for home.

"I do not remember anything else until Chief Grimshaw showed me my picture in a newspaper. Then I remembered my name and where I lived.

MIND WAS A BLANK.

"They tell me I talked with a lawyer at Danielson almost every day, but I don't remember it. I don't know how I got to Danielson, but remember faintly being put on the car early one morning. My mind is a blank from the time I met that woman in Riverside square."

How the girl got to Danielson from this city is still a mystery. The fare on the trolley cars between the places is sixty-five cents, yet Miss Hern had ten cents in her possession when she arrived in Connecticut. It is known that she had but thirty-five cents when she left her home to do the errand at the store.

According to the story told today by the girl's parents, schoolmates of Prudence Hern say they saw her in an automobile with four men the day of her disappearance. Several of the girls, it is said, know the woman who has been named by Miss Hern and are positive that she was one of the occupants of the car that day.

WARNING BY FATHER.

James R. Hern, the girl's father, said today that he had warned the woman to "keep away from his daughter."

"She will not be sixteen until April 10 and is not old enough to know the ways of the world," he said today.

He is insistent that the persons guilty of the offence shall be punished, and said today that if the local police do not take definite steps he will appeal to the federal authorities.

The police said today that they know the woman who is named by the girl and will question her when she is found. At the house where she has been staying it was said she had left home several days ago. It is known that a local federal investigator has been trying to locate the Hern girl.

"My daughter was never in New York," said Mrs. Hern today. "I talked with Mr. Hill, a lawyer in Danielson, and he told me he could not understand the girl. Chief Grimshaw told me that Prudence would say her prayers every night, but would do no talking during the day. They told me they thought the girl was suffering from aphasia."

TRIBUTE TO ROYCE BY MISS MUNSTERBERG

Miss Margarete Munsterberg, whose poem on Josiah Royce has interested Boston and Cambridge scholastic circles.

Scholastic circles in Cambridge and Boston were excitedly discussing today a poem by Miss Margarete Munsterberg, the literary daughter of Professor Hugo Munsterberg, head of the department of psychology at Harvard, in which she eulogizes Professor Josiah Royce, who shortly before his death had publicly clashed with her father on issues raised by the war.

"And we shall never let the flame grow dim that he has lit, a beacon on our way," reads a stanza from the poem which has recalled to the public the story printed in a Boston morning newspaper at the time of Professor Royce's death. Professor Munsterberg was quoted as saying that he would not attend Professor Royce's funeral because "our political opinions were so different, to say nothing of our standards of courtesy." Professor Munsterberg at once denied unequivocally any such sentiment or words.

Professor Munsterberg is radically in favor of the German cause in the world war, while Professor Royce, in a public meeting after the sinking of the Lusitania, referred to the spirit of the Germans as having "the primal curse upon it—a brother's murder," and also said, "The mark of Cain lasts while Cain lives."

Miss Munsterberg today said that the poem came spontaneously to her before the funeral of Professor Royce and expressed the regard she had had for him for years. She had taken a course under him in metaphysics at Radcliffe, where he was head of the department of metaphysics.

She declared her father knew she had written the poem before she mailed it to "The Nation," in which it was published. The poem reads:

IN MEMORY OF MY TEACHER, Josiah Royce.

Oh, for one deep and lucid mind we mourn.
An eye that on the sun of truth has gazed,
Nor ever turned away, like others, dazed—
A soul that travelled over paths unworn,
And searched the hidden deeps and knew no bourne.
A soul that yet its glance in wonder raised,
Like children at a miracle amazed,
And plucked white flowers out of weed and thorn.

We mourn, yet know that in a rarer clime
He dwells with sages and with seraphim,
Free from the fetters and the weight of clay
And from the passions of a gloomy time—
And we shall never let the flame grow dim
That he has lit, a beacon on our way.
—Margarete Munsterberg.

TRIBUTE TO ROYCE.

"There is no connection between this poem and that misunderstood interview," said Miss Munsterberg today. "It came to me spontaneously shortly after Professor Royce's death and before the funeral.

"Professor Royce was a remarkable man. I had known him for years, and he was a close friend of my father's. They may have had a difference of opinion, but they were always good friends.

"I took a course in metaphysics at Radcliffe under Professor Royce, and this added to my appreciation of him.

"Before I mailed the poem to 'The Nation' my father read it and knew I was going to have it published."

Miss Munsterberg has become well known in literary circles by reason of the fact that she has written two novels, "Red Poppies" and "Anna Borden's Career," and translated a volume of verse from the German. She has also written many poems, but not enough, as she explained today, to "put them between covers."

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH DANDERINE
Spend 25 cents! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.
Try this! Hair gets beautiful, wavy and thick in few moments.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and luxurious, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Advertisement.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG
Nobody can Tell when you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture is easily prepared upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

MISS LIPPITT WEDS BRITISH GENERAL

Providence, Oct. 3.—A romance of the battlefields of Europe became known here today, when it was learned that Miss Frances Lippitt, one of the wealthiest society girls of this city and the daughter of United States Senator Henry F. Lippitt, had married Brigadier-General Morton Foley Gage of the British army in Paris.

The marriage came as a complete surprise to Miss Lippitt's friends here.

"I've received a cablegram saying my daughter is married. That's all I know about it, so I can't give you any details," said Senator Lippitt today.

It was only three weeks ago that Miss Lippitt, accompanied by Miss Katherine Dorr of Boston, a member of the exclusive Vincent Club, sailed from New York to do relief work connected with the Red Cross in France during the Winter.

Both girls had taken special courses of instruction during the Summer so as to make them more efficient in the work they planned to do. Miss Lippitt took with her an automobile, believing that it would prove useful in France.

It was several years ago, when Miss Lippitt first went to Washington, when her father was elected United States senator, that she first met General Gage. He was then attached to the British Embassy. They were good friends, but there was no engagement so far as any acquaintances of Miss Lippitt's here knew.

FIRST SERMON IN SUNDAY'S TEMPLE

The first sermon to be delivered in Billy Sunday's tabernacle, now rapidly nearing completion, was delivered today by the Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Russian Street Baptist Church.

Workmen employed on the structure were the pastor's only audience. He quoted a number of passages of scripture.

"Only Mrs. Sunday in preaching the first sermon," he said afterward, "was simply to test the acoustics of the tabernacle. Billy will have no trouble being heard in the remotest corners of the building. The acoustics are splendid. Workmen in the far corners said they could hear distinctly every word I said."

Billy Sunday's campaign has opened with a remarkable demonstration throughout the city and suburbs. Prayer meetings were held in over one thousand homes. These prayer meetings were the first of a series which will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays until the services in the Tabernacle opens in November.

In Boston, according to the Rev. C. H. Page, the response for the meetings has been very gratifying to the committee. Mr. Page said that Boston will be stirred to its very depths before Billy Sunday comes. "When the evangelist arrives," said Mr. Page, "all of Boston will be in just the right mood to receive him and his work will produce marvelous results."

'Rio Grande' at Hollis Is Old Time Thriller

By FRED J. McISAAC.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—It's a shame the way they kill American soldiers in "Rio Grande" at the Hollis. Our army is small enough in all conscience, without our officers on the border shooting themselves or one another.

One colonel in command of a military post is murdered by a Mexican spy while entirely surrounding by his staff. One lieutenant blows his brains out. One orderly is shot down in cold blood by his colonel. Three fighting men gone, and not a Mexican hit the worst, at least not in view of the audience.

"Rio Grande" is the work of Augustus Thomas, who is a veteran playwright, author of "Arizona," "The Witching Hour," and several other fine plays.

This particular piece is ordinary melodrama, crude raw and violent. It is melodrama unrelieved by the comedy which used to lighten the old-fashioned variety. It takes us into an army post on the Rio Grande and gives us a sniff of the atmosphere of the Rio Grande, and then proceeds to unfold a grim and nasty story which might just as well have occurred at Burlington, Vt., or Kankakee as at Laredo, Tex.

Colonel Wolcott dies as a result of a knife wound inflicted by a Mexican spy. Dying he charges his daughter-Nan, to marry his lieutenant-colonel, Barnish, a man old enough to be her father. Nan has been on the point of accepting a young lieutenant, Ellsworth, but obeys her father.

Two years later we find Nan, as the colonel's wife, rough on account of repentance. It appears that she has been indiscreet with Ellsworth on an island in the river, but that Barnish loves the colonel, her husband. The colonel's orderly, a sinister person named Hecht, has been a witness to her indiscretion and demands that she be blind to him as a reward for his silence. In despair the girl jumps into the Rio Grande after writing a letter to her husband telling him all. She is fished out, and while two doctors are working over her, the letter is presented to her husband by Hecht. Ellsworth decides to blow out his brains before the colonel does it for him, and kindly goes outside to perform the ceremony.

In the nick of the colonel is convinced that Nan really loves him, and considers that Ellsworth's death and her attempted suicide wipe out the sin. But he calls in the orderly and shoots him in the head. This time in full view of the audience.

In New York a very strong company headed by Hilda Bennett is interpreted the play. A. H. Van Buren, who tries to make clear to the audience the curious conduct and mental processes of the colonel, just manages to muddy them up. The best feature of the performance is Amelia Gardners work as a kind-hearted, but bossy, army wife who mothers the girl-wife of the colonel, and Frank Campeau's strong, straightforward performance of Hecht, the orderly who aims high. Elsie Ritzer, who took Lola Fisher's role of Nan, does not make a profound impression. Harry Forsman, Robert Fraser and Juan Villasana deserve mention.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—Jack Norworth and Toots Paka and her band of Hawaiians are the double headliners at Keith's this week. Norworth, who in former years appeared as the care-free college youth with the careless hat, now wears Bond street clothes and carries a stick to show for his two years in England. He has some good songs—"Clancy," a song about his baby, and new version of the song out of the book. He tells some war time stories of things he saw in London. His singing is as clear, intelligent and pleasant as ever.

Toots Paka started the craze for Hawaiian music and dancing, which has been growing fast the last year or two.

She is the best of the Hawaiian dancers and her company can play and sing. The bill is essentially a comedy one, with Dugan and Raymond in a funny automobile act; the Lovenberg Sisters and Neary Brothers in a singing and dancing show that moves fast. The Hearst International News Pictorial has some especially good war pictures from the Eastern front.

WILBUR THEATRE—What is practically a second edition of "Very Good Eddie" went on at the Wilbur last night. The merry little musical piece has been in Boston eight weeks, and there are several new faces and new features in the performance.

Ines Hall, a Boston society dancer, has replaced Josephine Harriman in the dancing specialty. She has been dancing at Filene's during the past year or so. Her dancing partner is William Reardon. Two other new members in minor roles are Miss Olive Reeves Smith, youngest daughter of H. Reeves Smith, the actor, and Jean Troupman, niece of Charles Dillingham.

Ernest Truex, Alice Dovey, Ann Orr and the rest of the original cast are still as bright and amusing as ever, and the entertainment travels as successfully as upon the first night.

PARK THEATRE—One of the main attractions on the program is Frances Nelson, the Boston star of the famous play "The Revolt." The picture version of the play tells a stirring, vivid story of a phase of stirring, vivid story of a phase of life which at this moment is rife in our cities, and has direct bearing on the protection of our girls. Another feature picture on the bill is E. H. Sothern, supported by Peggy Hyland, the little English beauty, in the "Chattel." Sothern is seen as a wealthy financier who purchases a beautiful painting called the "Chattel," and when he marries he believes his wife is a chattel also, as he helps her father out of financial difficulties before their marriage. Following is Miss Billie Burke in the last chapter of "Gloria's Romance."

BOSTON THEATRE—Charlie Chaplin, in his newest comedy "The Pawnshop," headed the triple bill of feature pictures and high-class vaudeville at the Boston Theatre yesterday. Second to "The Pawnshop" is the appearance of Lucille Lee Stewart, the beautiful screen star, in two new and tremendously powerful five-part drama, "The Conflict." Edwin Stevens and Margaret Gale appear in the fifth episode of "The Yellow Menace." The vaudeville includes The Princeton Five, Dodge and Lowell, Corbett, Shepard and Donovan, Dora Hilton and the Yatto Duo.

ORPHEUM THEATRE — Charlie Chaplin was the real headliner of the bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday, in spite of there being provided one of the best vaudeville bills of the season. This time he appears in his newest creation, "The Pawnshop," and variated were his experiences, as there are varieties of articles in a well-ordered, or disordered, place of hypothecation. The leading act on the vaudeville bill is that of John P. Conroy and his diving models. The surrounding bill includes Charles MacNaughton, Lew Welch and company, Scanlon and Press, the Forest City Trio, Harry Augusta Turpin and others.

MODERN THEATRE—It is a diversified bill at the Modern Theatre this week, featuring Mlle. Valeska Suratt in "The Straight Way," a story of American life, recounting the adventures of a woman who has been wronged. In the course of the action Miss Suratt wears some wonderful costumes. The other feature is the Paramount Picture offering, "Anton the Terrible," featuring the players of which are Theodore Roberts and Anna Q. Nilsson.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—Supplementing a vaudeville bill that excels, there was shown at the St. James Theatre yesterday the latest Charlie Chaplin photo farce, "The Pawnshop." Mention may be made of the other act played. The "Cat Came Back," presented by Eddie Herron, Gertrude Lang and Spencer Ward offered a singing act. Carlton Clifford, a shadowgraphist, the Bradley Trio and Frankie Fay complete the bill.

WALDRON'S CASINO—"The Merry Rounders" at Waldron's Casino this week, is one of the biggest productions ever presented in burlesque, and Manager Max Spiegel has outdone all former efforts. The show provides needs no introduction to burlesque patrons. He is acknowledged to be the peer of any Hebrew comedian in burlesque, and is seen in the character of Jacob Rosenbloom, a shrewd Hebrew lawyer. Playing opposite Reynolds is George F. Hayes in his well-known Irish character.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM — "The Frolics of 1917" furnished a merry round of entertainment at the Howard yesterday with Arthur Connelly as the principal comedian and Lillian Lippmer as the leading lady. Viola Lubin, Jean Perry, Madge Stewart and other favorites were seen in the cast. The show opened with "It Happened in Paris," replete with bright and wholesome comedy. In the continuous part of the bill the Dayton Family, twelve acrobats, contributed a gymnastic specialty. Other acts were seen. The World's Series baseball returns will be shown on the Rodier electric scoreboard beginning Saturday.

FENWAY THEATRE—Billie Burke in the final episode of "Gloria's Romance" was responsible for a capacity audience at the Fenway Theatre yesterday. Even those who had never seen the preceding chapters pronounced the closing episode more interesting than most five-act features. Mae Murray in the new Paramount production, "The Big Sister," and a Western story, "That Gal of Burk's," were also well received.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—It is a most attractive triple bill at Gordon's Olympia this week. Mabel Taliaferro is seen in "The Dawn of Love." The second feature of the bill is Marie Nord in "The Lash." No first class bill is complete nowadays without Charlie Chaplin, and the devil one is seen at Gordon's in "The Pawnshop."

Coming Events

TREMONT TEMPLE—Every Boston fan who finds himself without a ticket to the big series but with a desire to see every play of all the games of the struggle for the championship of the world, will have an exceptional opportunity to gratify said desire at Tremont Temple. All fans who were fortunate enough to attend the reproduction of last Fall's world's series will recall how completely satisfactory was the smooth working, steady and realistic reproduction presented there. Because of last year's success the management of the Temple will present the same reproduction with the experienced operators who played the game last year.

SHUBERT THEATRE—From twelve weeks in Los Angeles, sixteen in San Francisco, and twenty-six in Chicago comes next week to the Shubert Oliver Morosco's successful musical comedy, "No Long Letty." The engagement, which is limited to three weeks, begins next Monday evening. The large company of eighty-five is headed by Charlotte Greenwood. Seats go on sale today.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—Seats went on sale this morning for the engagement of Arthur Hopkins' latest production, "Good Gracious Annabelle," which is promised at the Park Square Theatre Monday night. This is a farce by Clare Kummer, hitherto only known as a composer of songs, this being her first venture in the dramatic field.

TREMONT THEATRE—There will be sure to be a lively demand next Thursday morning at the box office at the Tremont Theatre when seats are placed on sale for the engagement of "Potash & Perlmutter in Society," which will have its Boston premiere next Monday evening.

MORAL LESSON SHOWN IN FILM PLAY

MAJESTIC THEATRE—"Is Any Girl Safe," a feature photoplay in six reels, moved into the Majestic yesterday. This film is produced by a concern known as the Anti-Vice Company and its purpose is to act as a warning sign to young girls of the perils of promiscuous flirtation.

The picture is in narrative form, only the narrative appears to be told from his pulpit by a clergyman. The clergyman is shown several times in oratorical action to show that no matter what transpires, the purpose of the picture is moral and helpful.

Two young men whose business appears to be "cadets," are introduced. They hang around corners and ogle girls who pass.

The first youth gets the attention of one girl and entertains her. He professes honorable intentions and becomes engaged to her. Then he takes her to call upon his mother, as he tells her, but really delivers her into the hands of a woman who runs a resort. For this he receives considerable money. He goes to show his winnings to his friend, but finds him engaged in mastering a young girl who is well known to the character.

Next comes a rough and tumble fight which is really exciting and the police come in and bundle everybody into the patrol wagon. That is the story of the picture. The young man reforms and marries the girl he sold and then rescued and gets a diploma for breaking up the white slave ring.

GAIETY THEATRE—The Majestics, now at the Gaiety Theatre, will mightily please those who love a show handsomely staged and well done, and who love a well balanced performance of vaudeville and burlesque features. There are several well known stars in the cast and several newcomers. Among the latter is Lyle La Pine, an eccentric comedian. Frank DeMont is another new man in this section, and shines brilliantly in eccentricity dances. Miss Florence Bennett is the leading woman.

COPLET THEATRE—Following up the success of the opening night, last Saturday, when a capacity house witnessed the first performance of the permanent repertory season at the Copley Theatre, the Henry Jewett Players were greeted last night by another packed house and duplicated their triumph with another performance of Bernard Shaw's delightfully humorous farce comedy, "You Never Can Tell."

Plays That Remain

SHUBERT THEATRE—Belated patrons of "Katinka," who had not previously seen the Hauerbach-Friml musical show, filled the Shubert Theatre last evening at the beginning of its last week's stay in Boston. The sumptuous settings of the three acts elicited warm praise for the producer, Arthur Hammerstein, and the bright book, with a real plot, retained lively interest throughout, and the tuneful solo and ensemble numbers were frequently encored.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"The Silent Witness," Otto Hauerbach's interesting drama, had settled down for a prosperous stay at the Plymouth Theatre. The story woven around "Bud" Morgan and his parentage gives plenty of opportunities for thrills. An exceedingly well balanced cast interprets the various roles, chief player being Henry Kolker.

TREMONT THEATRE — "Civilization" began its final week at the Tremont Theatre yesterday. That this photo spectacle has made a strong appeal to the lovers of picture drama is unquestioned, the fact being its sponsors have tried to prolong its engagement, but were unable owing to a previously booked attraction.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—"Hit-the-Trail Holliday" began its final week at the Park Square Theatre yesterday. This week's bill for more days in which to see this funniest of George Cohan's comedies.

MISS YOUNG APPEARS AT GLOBE

Clara Kimball Young, the popular and beautiful movie star, appeared on the Globe Theatre stage last evening and told her audience of her plans for future movies which she maintains will be an advance upon anything she has done in the past.

Miss Young, dressed in a white gown, with a pink silk throw wrap, stepped before the footlights looking much as she has in hundreds of moving pictures.

Her speech, which was applauded vigorously, was given immediately preceding a six-reel film, "The Common Law," written by Robert W. Chambers, and produced by Miss Young and her own New York company.

"I am delighted to have my own people, and my own studio where, like all women, I wish to have my say and what is more do have my way. Tonight I go back to New York to begin immediately rehearsing Robert Dixon's photo play taken from his book, 'The Foolish Virgin.' I trust that you, my friends, will be as glad to see me in the future as you have been in the past."

"The Common Law" is an attractive photo play with sufficient thrills and humor to keep interest alive.

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE—The feature picture last night at the Franklin Park was Edmund Breese in "The Weakness of Strength." There was also a Drew comedy, the Sutton Trio in "The Perfume Shop," a feature picture last night at the Franklin Park was Edmund Breese in "The Weakness of Strength." DRINK EVIL SHOWN IN DRAMA

A genuinely stirring and vitalized drama is offered at the Castle Square Theatre this week. "The Devil's Harvest," the latest of Sir Edward E. Rose's plays, was given its first performance last night and was witnessed by a crowded house, which generously applauded the players.

"The Devil's Harvest" gives a clear description of every-day life and is set forth in four acts, the scenes being laid in a little Western town. The story of the play tells of the degenerating influence of drink on a family in the little town of Wellville. John Howell, possessed a good-paying job in a factory and was getting along nicely until the little town voted "yes" on the liquor question. He left his job and established a little store, where he kept for sale liquors.

The family prospered on the money obtained, but in the meantime all turn to drink. An expounder of prohibition purchases a newspaper and very shortly rids the little place of the liquor menace and once more the community thrives and prospers.

The cast consists of Wellington S. Playter, Edmund Roberts, George Timmons, Nat Griswold, Frank Layton, Edward B. Reese, Dorothy Fox Slater, Irene Downey, Mary Balsar and Lillian Ross, and all proved artists of ability.

WILSON MEN SNAP UP 1 TO 2 MONEY

New York, Oct. 3.—Betting commissioners report that the Wilson backers are much encouraged by results of recent straw votes and are freely accepting the odds of 2 to 1 which the Hughes men are offering.

Heretofore the supporters of Wilson have been asking 2½ to 1. Edward McQuade reports that he has placed $1,000 on Wilson against $2,000 on Hughes, and another Curb broker reports a similar bet. J. J. Judge offers $4,000 on Wilson against $10,000 on Hughes. L. J. Stokes offers $2,000 on Wilson against $5,000 on Hughes, with no takers.

MILK FAMINE FEARED

"Boston is getting and will continue to get all the milk it needs and can use," declared the milk contractors today on the second day of the milk war.

"The shortage will begin to be felt tonight and grow worse every day," declared the milk farmers today fighting for a rate of 50 cents for an 8½ quart can as compared with the 47 cents which they have been receiving.

Four Boston companies which were reported as having yielded to the farmers today denied the report.

Secretary Richard Pattee of the New England Milk Producers' Association received a telegram in which it was stated that Whiting, Childs Brothers, Andrews and Burrows had agreed to pay the price.

DENIES YIELDING.

Charles F. Whiting of the D. Whiting & Sons Company said:

"The story in the morning papers is not true. We have not agreed with anyone to pay the price asked for. As to the telegram received by Mr. Pattee, I should not attempt to explain. Even though we did agree to pay the farmers what they ask, we would inform our individual producers and not Mr. Pattee of the association."

With both sides claiming a victory thus far, Boston's milk supply remained the same today. A slight shortage is expected tonight, followed tomorrow with more noticeable shortages. Secretary Pattee states that within the next twenty-four hours, unless the contractors concede the demands of the farmers, Boston will face a most serious proposition.

At the new milk depot early today milk continued to arrive. More trucks to distribute the milk were on hand than yesterday.

LOOK FOR CRISIS.

Representatives of the New England Milk Producers' Association, now in Boston, conducting the fight being waged between the milk producers of New England and the large Boston milk contractors, in reference to proper milk prices, are today more emphatic than ever in their statements that Boston faces the most serious milk crisis in its history.

Every mail brings to Secretary Richard Pattee of the Association, at the headquarters in a down-town hotel, letters from bodies of representative milk producers all over New England, saying that they will not ship one drop of milk to Boston unless they get the price asked for.

Already the pinch is being felt, they claim. According to Mr. Pattee, the most noticeable shrinkage thus far is that from the White River Junction section. This train has already dropped from over 1,000 cans to less than fifty, he says.

FELT IN FEW DAYS.

The real effect, however, will probably not be felt for a few days. There are several milk producers who are contract-bound to supply the Boston contractors with milk. For instance, several dealers in Lancaster, N. H., have another month, according to their contracts, in which they are bound to ship milk.

The rank and file of the producers have declared their intention by letter and phone to Secretary Pattee to stop all shipments immediately.

Bodies of farmers are meeting night after night in the small communities and voting solidly to stand by the association in the fight for "right prices."

One letter from Whiting, Vt., states that a solid vote was taken by several producers to stop the shipments, adding that four separators had already been installed by some of the producers in that section. That means that the milk instead of being shipped to Boston will be made into butter.

Violence Marks Milk Struggle in New York.

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 3.—Violence which in ruthlessness surpasses that of the most riotous days of the New York traction strike has begun to mark the war between the big milk dealers and the up-state farmers.

Irving P. Waite of Wingdale lies in a Dutchess county hospital at the point of death. Men lying in ambush behind bushes set upon him while he was trying to take a load of milk to the station. He was beaten into unconsciousness. At Cassville, Oneida County, three masked men captured a milk wagon and dumped its contents on the roads. Thousands of gallons of milk have been emptied in the roadside ditches of New York and New Jersey.

Meanwhile prospects of the threatened milk famine in New York city being averted are steadily darkening. The hopes of the New York public are pinned upon the outcome of the investigation begun by Attorney-General Woodbury into complaints by both sides to the controversy. The point at issue is whether one side, or both, have violated the Donnelly anti-trust law.

Today's milk supply was less than 50 per cent. of the normal delivery. State Commissioner of Foods and Markets John J. Dillon predicted today that by Friday the city will be practically without milk. He said babies will be affected by the famine, adding that the big distributors could avert it by a stroke of the pen.

Dairymen to Sell Milk for 8 Cents

Walter E. Innis, owner of a large dairy farm at Danvers Highlands, defies the "milk trust" by declaring:

"I shall not raise the price of my milk to 10 cents a quart. I sell at 8 cents per and make a substantial profit. If everything turns out all right, I shall sell it at 7 cents. Give me 500 hundred good cows and I will defy any milk trust."

When Mr. Innis was asked if he made money on his farm, he smiled and—like a modern representative of the Grecchi family—pointed to his seven children, just coming into the yard.

"They don't look hungry, do they? My oldest boy, Walter, Jr., is sixteen and has full charge of the milk route.

"The milk dealers have taken advantage of certain statements coming from the milk trust to the effect that nothing can be made on eight-cent milk. I have twenty of the finest cows and eight calves. I seldom kill a calf because I believe that this is one of the chief causes of the advancement in milk and beef. I can raise a calf for $50, while other milk dealers have to pay between $60 and $100 for their cows."

Nervous Periodical Headaches

This trouble commonly called "sick headache, is said to be due to the retention of urea in the system. Often it is stated that a poor condition of the blood is a cause of these headaches, or that it is a nervous condition; and in certain cases, no doubt this is true.

Whatever treatment is demanded, it is more for the pain than anything else, and Dr. A. P. Schellhamidt, of Louisville, has found anti-kamnin tablets to give prompt and satisfactory relief. "Rest should be insisted upon," he says, "and the patient should go to bed, darken the room, and all the attendants and family should be as quiet as possible. An enema will sometimes shorten the attack. The bowels should be kept open with "Acnoids"; a hot bath and a thorough rub-down with a coarse towel, often gives grateful relief. Two anti-kamnin tablets when the first signs appear, will usually prevent the attack. During an attack, one tablet every hour or two will shorten the attack and relieve the usual nausea and vomiting." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for nervous headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

BAY STATE BOYS WIN SHAM FIGHT

By BERT FORD.

Canutillo, Texas, Oct. 3.—The Bay State's forces, aided chiefly by the cavalry patrol and skirmishers, repulsed and defeated a theoretical army, which was supposed to have flanked General Morton's Tenth Army Division along the mountains to seize the supply train.

It was the third day of the fifteen-day hike and the problems worked out proved successful and instructive. General Morton's division impersonated a Brown army whose object was to rout the Red invaders. The Reds were supposed to be encamped near Lascrimes, with outposts at Mesilla Park. Hostile patrols were sighted near Pyramid Peak and Mesquite, a Red cavalry force, of brigade strength, was reported at Hill's Ranch and the Red cavalry skirmishers held Wells and Anthony's Gaps in the mountains. General Morton sent out his cavalry squadrons with the Bay State troops in the advance patrol.

The Brown horsemen attacked and held the Red patrols in the mountain gaps and held the bridges. Over the bridges General Morton hurried his cavalry and artillery forces and his army train. As the cavalry and artillery and supply wagons clattered along the west bank of the Rio Grande, General Morton sent a parallel column of infantry along the east bank with the Massachusetts brigade in the main column supported by the Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan brigades.

After repulsing the Reds, the Bay State troops and those from the other States pressed on to Anthony, where camp was pitched in the afternoon.

The Tenth Division hiked only four miles owing to the oppressive heat and the excellent water and camp facilities in Montoya. The Bay State infantrymen are in such good shape that few fall out, even with sore feet.

Rush for Series Seats
Red Sox Force on Jump

By JOHN W. MORAN, Jr.

With the pennant won, affairs at the Red Sox park have become exceptionally brisk. President Lannin has a large force at work on the matter of World's Series applications. He has personally supervised the allotment of tickets and has done his utmost to satisfy each and every applicant. It would seem as though the club had heard from practically every baseball "fan" in the country on the matter of World's Series tickets.

For weeks the mail has been coming in big bunches and there has been no sign of a letup. As fast as received it has been looked over and proper action taken.

President Lannin announced last night that he had received a number of applications which were prompt in every respect but one. That one out lay is that the sender of the request has failed to append his name to his request for tickets. There were several such instances. Just how a man could hope to get tickets and not name himself is indeed difficult to understand.

Just at present it is impossible to say when the orders will be sent to those who applied. Today President Lannin is in New York attending the meeting of the National Commission, at which time some plan will be perfected for going ahead with the arrangements.

President Lannin is anxious to have the big series open here on Saturday. He feels that inasmuch as he is ready and inasmuch as Braves Field is ready for the task, Boston should get the first games.

LANNIN IS PREPARED.

With the National League race still an unsettled thing, neither the Sox president nor those most interested can understand how either Brooklyn or Philadelphia can be ready for the clash on Saturday. Extra seats will have to be built in each city. They cannot be safely built between the time either of the two clubs completes its schedule, and Saturday forenoon, when the great majority of rush seat "fans" will start for the park.

Today at the meeting it may be that tentative plans are drawn which will allow for the toss and decision as to the place of opening. If Boston is favored President Lannin will return right to the task of completing arrangements at this end. There must be some hasts here as well as in either Philadelphia or Brooklyn.

One can appreciate that every "fan" who applies for tickets does not reside right here in Boston. He may live in Worcester, Fall River, Springfield or some of the other Massachusetts cities and towns outside. It would take a day or two for the mail to reach him. Consequently President Lannin feels that it will be necessary to get the replies started off by Thursday at the latest, so as to insure every "fan" of his seats.

BUSY AS BEAVERS.

Yesterday all hands were busy as beavers at the club offices. After the game a majority of the players went up to the club offices and gave in their request for tickets. Then when most of them had finished the task we glimpsed none other than the well known Dr. John F. Fitzgerald. We presume that he, like most of the others, was in quest of seats for the big clash. Just after concluding his business with Dr. Fitzgerald Mr. Lannin hastened home to make arrangements for the trip to New York.

It was announced at the club offices that the committee which will have charge of press arrangements for the Boston end of the series had been appointed. It includes Ralph E. McMillin of the Journal, Timothy Hurst Murnane of the Globe and Howard Reynolds of the Post. McMillin, who is chairman of the local chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America, will act as chairman of the press committee. Applications for seats from Boston press associations should be addressed to the committee at the club offices, Fenway Park.

WORCESTER TO SEE SOX.

Though there was a report that the series might open on Friday neither President Lannin nor Chairman McMillin of the Baseball Writers' Association had heard anything regarding it. It would be necessary that McMillin receive some notice, for the association annually chooses an official scorer to represent the city and always sufficient time is given for that work. Mr. Lannin said he had received no notice of such a plan, but if one came he was prepared for the start.

After today's double bill the Sox and Athletics will rest around town until Tuesday when both teams will go to Worcester. They will participate in an exhibition game the proceeds of which will go to the John H. Gaffney fund.

Gaffney was an old time National League umpire, who made his home in Worcester. Friends have started a fund for a suitable memorial and Manager Barrow, who was instrumental in helping out in the plan are Connie Mack, President Lannin, Manager Carrigan and the players of each team.

Motor Notes.

By J. C. KERRISON.

The automobile show which is being held in connection with the Brockton Fair is one of the most complete that has been staged in this vicinity aside the annual event of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association. It is a replica of the big exhibit held in March, and gives the individual an early opportunity of comparing the latest model side by side.

The building in which the show is being staged is one constructed expressly for that purpose. The light is desirable and the location of exhibits materially assists in bringing out the fine points of the various cars. The motor exhibit is bound to be one of the most popular departments at the show.

After fourteen years of effort on the part of good roads enthusiasts, the government finally has appropriated $10,000 for the erection of sign posts to water holes in the Mojave desert. The matter of posting the desert was taken up by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce when autos first began making transcontinental trips, at which time the dry waste land formed a barrier to all except the most venturesome drivers.

Joe Cox Out to Trouble Gunner

New York, Oct. 2.—The Broadway Sporting Club, which isn't on Broadway at all, but in Brooklyn, will witness a crisis in the fortunes of the Cox family of Missouri tonight.

Joseph, of that name, came to these parts several months ago touted as the individual who had made Jess Willard jump out of the ring during the earlier stages of that prominent circus performer's pugilistic career.

Later Joe mingled in a slight unpleasantness with Bob Moha, who goes around posing as one of those tough babies. Bob effectively resolved the Cox mirage, employing two hands largely therefor and hitting Joseph with everything except the water bucket.

Now Joseph is faced with the alternative of beating up, or scuttling, the ancient "Gunboat" Smith, or passing through the gate marked "Outgoing trains" back to that dear Springfield in the Show-me State.

The Gunboat, although of a slightly antiquated model and unable to get as much speed out of the old turbines as in a happier day, still packs the old fourteen-inch turret wallop and one worked off a lot of fat in preparation for his ten-round cruise with Joseph.

CLEARY TO COACH ST. ALPHONSUS CLUB

The St. Alphonsus Association of Roxbury will begin its football season on Columbus Day. The association has been fortunate this year in securing as coach Walter Cleary, who will be remembered as an old Boston Latin and Harvard football star.

Last year Cleary took charge of the football team for the final games of the season, and his work manifested itself in the annual game with Roxbindale, which was won in a decisive manner by the Roxbury team.

Coach Cleary is at present giving his attention to the back field candidates, and the team should be in fairly good shape by Columbus Day. Teams desiring games should write to Manager William F. Grady, St. Alphonsus Association, Roxbury.

RENZ IN FOR RUNNING.

New York, Oct. 3.—Eddie Renz of the Mohawk A. C., America's greatest amateur champion heel and toe artist, has decided to quit walking and will try long-distance running the next time he wears an athletic suit.

PLAYING THE WORLD'S SERIES WITH HUGH S FULLERTON

Here is the ninth of a series of expert articles on the World's Series games by Hugh S. Fullerton's World's Series stories will be a feature of the daily and Sunday AMERICAN.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

This World's Series doping is enough to set a fellow crazy. Here I started in to calculate the comparative strengths of the pitchers and catchers of the Boston Red Sox and the Phils and Dodgers. (This was before it became certain which team would grab the National bunting.) I was all set with the idea that the Red Sox would certainly show undoubted superiority over their rivals, and they had ave made good my contention.

The figures reveal the superiority all right, but it is so confounded slight that an accident or a bit of luck either way might change it entirely. It is very close figuring, and it requires some odd doping on all the men involved.

The thing that puts me right up against it is Carrigan himself. Carrigan would not, under ordinary circumstances, essay to catch in the World's Series, believing he can do his team more good as bench manager, but, with Barry out of the game and the team in need of a directing general on the field, he is almost compelled to take his turn and work with the toughest of his pitchers in order to steady them and direct the field work of his men.

If Barry is able to get into the battles Carrigan can breathe a sigh of relief and attend to other duties. That makes tough figuring, for, to calculate the strength, either offensive or defensive, of any team, it is necessary to know who, in all probability, will catch the games. I have made a composite of Carrigan, Cady and Thomas, and figure Cady to carry the bulk of the work, probably catching three games if the series goes five or six.

CARRIGAN WILL CATCH RUTH.

Carrigan has a theory (and a sound one) that one catcher is better with some pitchers than with others. His catchers and pitchers have for years worked in pairs, and this season he has adhered to his system as closely as possible. You may figure Cady to catch Shore, and Thomas will probably work with Foster, but the chances are that old Father Carrigan will be in there himself to handle his baby wonder, Ruth, and Leonard.

Carrigan is heavy, has slowed down and is not in the best of condition, but he handles pitchers well, and that counts for a lot in the series. Besides, in spite of a perceptible shortage of antelope assets, he is there with the punch and can help break up games. Cady has slumped frightfully as a batter, and he hadn't far to stump at that, while Thomas is not a great hitter, either.

The catchers of the Red Sox are not liable to do much damage to the pitching of Alexander or Jack Coombs or Pfeffer, but they can harm some of the other pitchers to a considerable extent.

The defensive ability of Boston's and the Phillies' catchers is one of the remarkable features of the dope. In calculating the value of teams I figure the offensive part of the game at 62 per cent. and the defensive at 38 per cent.

BROOKLYN'S BACKSTOPS WEAK.

Each position, of course, differs in value, and I figure the catcher worth 14 per cent. of the total team strength. In this doping, we find that the catchers of both the Phils and the Red Sox figure to be worth more than the average value of their position on defensive end, while the Brooklyn squad is below the average in strength.

The Brooklyn club will rely upon Chief Meyers in the series. He is their best bet, of course, although never a great backstop and one who held his job with the Giants for years through his hitting power. He still is the ranking batting catcher of the World's Series aspirants, with the exception of his teammate—Miller—who is quite a swatter. You may figure safely that, if the series is a six-game one, the Indian will catch four and Miller two, should Brooklyn break in.

This pair figures stronger in attack than any of the others and much weaker in defence. On total value, they rank below either of the others. But, supposing this series develops into a slugging match after the first two games, what then? Immediately the hitting power of Brooklyn's catchers would tell greatly, and they would become even more valuable than the Red Sox squad. If it is a pitcher's series—as such series usually are—then Brooklyn's strength ebbs rapidly.

The Philadelphia pair ranks well up in catching. Killifer is not the backstop he was a few years ago. His arm, while it has come back to a large extent, is not as strong as formerly. Burns, forced into the series last season because of Killifer's bad arm, caught a creditable brand of ball.

BURNS IS IMPROVED CATCHER.

He muddled up Alexander's second game in bad shape, and had an attack of the panics. But the experience helped him wonderfully. He has caught better this year as a result and shows more confidence. He no longer is "second catcher," but the teammate of Killifer and the moral effect has been good.

Tomorrow we will tackle the pitchers. After all, pitchers are money the whole thing in a series like this, and I'll be on my knees to boomer wabble or weaken that the other points of strength or weakness of a team become glaringly evident.

The comparison of the pitchers ought to show us a lot about the team strengths. I have tried not to hint what my figures will show, but the truth is I had to dope the pitchers first before starting to figure the strengths of the other positions. I can promise some surprises, especially to you fellows who look only at the won and lost games.

Brooklyn Catchers Excel at Bat; Phillies Best in Field

Following is a comparison of the catchers on the Dodgers, Phillies and Red Sox, contenders for the 1916 world's championship, compiled by Al Munro Elias, the famous baseball statistician. Elias figures all the catchers of each team, and it shows that the Brooklyn backstops are better with the bat while Philadelphia receivers get a shade in fielding.

Killeen is Off to Get Tickets

John M. Killeen, chief hustler and lookout extraordinary of the Royal Rooters, baildom's premier fan clan, is in New York today, mingling with the magnates who are assembled to complete arrangements for the World's Series.

Killeen went over to get into touch with President Ebbets of the Dodgers and President Baker of the Phillies, and find out if the Royal Rooters are going to get their full allotment of tickets just as soon as it becomes known which club is to go to war with the Red Sox.

Killeen figures that by being on the spot, under Magnate Lannin's chaperonage, he will be able to attach his full order for seats. Before leaving on an early train today Killeen said to the AMERICAN:

"The old guard need not worry. I know I'll be able to fill the orders received to date. However, all good rooters who have delayed enlisting may find themselves up against it. How's business? It's a record-breaker for the Royal Rooters. Wherever we go, Brooklyn or Philadelphia, the party will be considerably larger than those that hit the trail in 1903, 1912, 1914 and last year.

"Fans from all over New England, as well as northern New York, have enlisted, while the Greater Boston delegation is the heaviest on record."

SOX FAVORITES IN SERIES WITH CUBS

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Chicago will start a little World Series all its own here tomorrow, when the Cubs and Sox play the annual city series. The first game will be played in Comiskey Park, and thereafter the scene of battle will alternate until one club has won four games.

The Sox are the present city champions, and will go into the coming series heavy favorites in the betting.

COUGHLIN HERE TO LEAD ROYAL ROOTERS

The World's Series is practically tucked away in the vest pocket of President "Joe" Lannin's Red Sox, and the only and best reason is the fact that Royal Rooter Extraordinary "Jimmie" Coughlin, drum major of the Ninth Regiment, arrived in town early today fresh from the wilds of Camp Cotton on a furlough to lead the "Royal Rooters" to to Brooklyn or Philadelphia and victory.

WHEN YOU stop to realize the number of sound, conservative men who have changed over to Fatimas in the last six months, it surely indicates that Fatimas must offer something no other cigarette can offer.

Perhaps you haven't thought of it this way:

Do you know any other cigarette that is always cool and comfortable? Do you know any other cigarette beside Fatimas that leaves a man feeling fine and "fit" even after a long-smoking day?

It is these qualities that make Fatimas truly sensible.

VARSITY IN RAPID DRILL

A stiff scrimmage is looked for on Soldiers Field this afternoon when the Harvard varsity continues its work of preparation for the game with Tufts Saturday afternoon.

Coach Leary, despite the marked improvement shown by the Crimson last Saturday against Bates, is not allowing a sense of false security to blind him to the need of the eleven for some good working plays for the Tufts battle.

The Crimson, so far this Fall, has fitted its play to its available material, and a fast running game has resulted, coupled with end twists and forward passing.

Monday is Harvard's usual day for light work. The players are given unexerting exercises to allow them to recuperate from the game of the Saturday before.

The hardest work the Crimson varsity is called on to do is to listen to an hour's blackboard talk, with Coach Leary acting as pedagogue. Leary doesn't mince his words, and no matter how fine a game his charges may have played, he lets them down with the remark that it was "punk."

Yesterday's curtain lecture was no exception and the men were glad to get into the fieldhouse. The coaches took their different squads aside and drilled them on the fundamentals. Later signal drill was held, after which drop kicking and punting finished the labor.

Moss Taylor did not dress for play, although he later ran through signals with the varsity eleven. Charley Coolidge, who reached Cambridge last Friday, coming on from China, played left end on Team B.

Homer Sweetser, a freshman guard three seasons ago, but who has been out of college, joined the varsity. He was turned over to Bob Fisher, who is coaching the guards and tackles.

Two Records for The Real Lady

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 2.—Two world's records were made by The Real Lady in winning the two-year-old division of the Kentucky Futurity, the principal event of the opening day of the forty-fourth annual meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association.

Thomas Murphy's entry trotted the first heat in 2:07½, lowering the former mark of 2:07¾ for two-year-old fillies, held jointly by Native Belle and Volga. She reduced that mark in the second heat, trotting it in 2:07, and by doing so established a new two-heat record for two-year-old fillies.

The Real Lady was bred at Walnut Hall Farm here, and is the third filly by Moko to win the two-year-old futurity. The mark set by The Real Lady gives Murphy both the two-year-old filly and colt record, he having driven Peter Volo when the colt made the record of 2:04½.

AMERICAN'S GREAT LINE UP FOR THE WORLD'S SERIES

"BILL" CARRIGAN, manager of world's champion Red Sox, will tell the "inside" story of how the games are played.

HUGH FULLERTON, famous baseball statistician, will "figure" the games for the fans.

TAD—The Cartoonist—nuf ced.

DAMON RUNYON, the great descriptive writer, will tell what happened and how it happened.

K. C. B., conductor of one of the most original and entertaining feature columns, will write of fans and ball players and the by-products of the series.

FRANK G. MENKE, sporting editor of the I. N. S., will write sidelights and tell how the runs were made.

CHARLES DRYDEN, the veteran baseball writer, will write a number of pre-series articles, setting forth the dope on the series as no other man can.

BRUNO LESSING, famous short story writer, will strike the "human note."

And there are others.

Yale Bowl Is to Care for 68,600

New Haven, Oct. 3. — Two spectacular features marked the drill of the Yale warriors, Harry LeGore lifting a sixty-five-yard kick and Quarterback Smith catching a punt and running back sixty yards through a broken field.

Captain Black and Halfback Bingham, who were slightly injured in the Carnegie Tech game Saturday, were on the side lines. Galt was assigned to left guard and Waite to left halfback.

Applications were distributed for tickets to the Yale-Harvard and Yale-Princeton games. A demand for 24,000 seats has been received from Harvard, and the Yale football management states that it will be impossible to handle the crowd which is assured at the Bowl, which holds only 69,617 persons at present.

A meeting of the committee in charge of the Bowl will be held immediately to consider erecting 8,000 more seats to assist in relieving the demand for tickets.

FITZGERALD IS NEW B. C. QUARTERBACK

Fitzgerald, Boston Latin's quarterback in his school days, has been switched to that position by Coach Brickley of Boston College, who observed a lot of weaknesses in the Dartmouth game and is out to remedy them as well as possible. Regan and Dee have supplanted Brickley to date this Fall, and Fitzgerald will be given every chance to remain at the same position.

Captain Dullea, Fitzpatrick, Hanlon, Tierney, Lowney, Curley and Trowbridge did not practice, as they are nursing minor injuries. Tonry is still out resting his weak knee. Joe Brickley, the coach's brother, has joined the squad.

SHIVERICK STAR OF CORNELL SCRIMMAGE

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Cornell's football squad opened the second week of practice with another hard scrimmage, in which the scrubs held the varsity to two touchdowns. Shiverick kicked two field goals and his runs were the feature of the varsity's offence.

Benedict and Hoffman remained at halfbacks on the varsity and look like Dr. Sharp's choice for first string men, though Brets and Hauke of the second team are still in the running.

EXETER SQUAD WILL GET BUSY THURSDAY

Exeter, N. H., Oct. 3.—Manager C. J. Judson announces that the opening football game for Phillips Exeter will be played October 14, with either Dean or Hebron Academy. Coach Harry Vaughn is expected today or tomorrow, and the candidates will be called out Thursday.

The choice of captain rests between Roswell Davis of Hartford, Ct., and Herbert G. Noyes of Newburyport, Mass.

B. C. STAR GETTING WELL

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 3.—Jack Sullivan, Boston College football star stricken here suddenly last Saturday and operated on for appendicitis at the Mary Hitchcock Hospital, was reported today as being in good shape and recovering rapidly.

Big Jess Through, Says Sherman

Harry Sherman, one of the sporting world's new highflyers, born right here in Boston, and a bicycle rider of fair renown in his boyhood days, now located in Minneapolis, where he went eight years ago and now generally rated the film king of the Northwest, left for New York early this morning after spending two days with old friends here.

Sherman is operating Minneapolis' two leading boxing clubs. He reports that the Winter season there will open Friday, November 8, with Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul Phantom, and Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis Thunderbolt, clashing in a ten-round battle.

Sherman made a big effort to book Jess Willard for a championship fight with Fred Fulton, the Rochester Minn., giant, Labor Day. Starting in with a bid of $50,000 to the champion, Sherman raised his offer to $45,000, but Big Jess was forced to turn it down, owing to being unable to break his circus contract.

"I saw Willard in early August and doubt very much if he ever fights again," stated Sherman in the AMERICAN office. "He looked as clean and as athletic as ever, but is putting on weight at an alarming gait.

"Willard must weigh all of 310 pounds and will never be able to get down to such a weight as would give the victim picked to meet him even an outside chance. So I doubt if any promoter will ever make him anything like a bid he will consider attractive enough to accept."

Sherman attended the Labor Day lightweight title battle between Freddie Welsh and Charley White at Colorado Springs. He said it was anything but a spectacular fight; that White put off his rush too long; that Welsh was entirely too artful for him and that Billy Roche's decision was good enough.

Sherman was here to dispose of the New England rights for "The Crisis," which he recently purchased for all of the United States and Canada from William N. Selig for $250,000.

NEW YORK RING TALK.

New York, Oct. 3.—Johnny Harvey and Harry Pierce are booked for ten rounds at the Hunt's Point Sporting Club tonight. There will also be a ten-round session between Young Reuter and Willie Autry.

New York, Oct. 3.—John Lester Johnson, colored heavyweight, stopped Jack Keating in the fifth round at the Vanderbilt A. C.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Jimmy Duffy, the Lowell lightweight, outpointed Willie Loughran, Providence, in a ten-round bout.

SHUBERT FAVORED IN BOUT

New Bedford Bantams, Former Sparring Partners, Meet in Main Tilt at Triple A.

By RINGSIDE.

Whether Al Shubert of New Bedford, noted the country over as one of the best bantamweights in the Queensberry world, is as good as he used to be, or whether Young Britt, who hails from the same city, has gone gallavanting ahead of him, will be found out at the Arena tonight when these two famed little ring artists clash in the twelve-round windup number.

Young Britt was formerly Shubert's sparring partner. But that was several years ago—before Britt went out on Big Time on his own accord.

Britt has had a cyclonic Summer season, whereas Shubert has been idle. But Al has ever been the artist, a fast, tricky, classy, gloveman, and it goes almost without saying he will be cherry ripe for tonight's fuss, which, if it should go against him, will give him a huge setback.

Young Britt has just got through defeating Howard Medina, Al Delmont and Monte Attell at the Commercial A. C. and giving Young Pal Moore, Southland's premier bantamweight, two stiff tussles at the Arena.

While his admirers are confident he is going over a winner, the bulk of the wise-cracking brigade is stringing with Shubert, and the chances are Al will rule the betting choice.

Shubert should win unless his Summer's idleness has slowed him down. He's as good a pacemaker as there is among the game's little fellows; a faster and more resourceful battler than Britt and likewise looms up as the class of the show.

According to the Armory A. A. management, Shubert and Britt have posted forfeits of $250 that they will make 120 pounds at 3 p. m. Britt has been boxing around that figure all Summer, though dodging the weighing-in exercises for his return set-to with Moore, a fortnight ago.

As for Shubert, he was a full-fledged featherweight in the bulk of his starts last Spring, though formerly listed as a bantam. Still, John A. Miller of Fairhaven, his manager, claims Shubert will easily make 120 pounds as agreed upon.

The second twelve-round bout will be rendered by Pete Hartley of Lou P. Flynn's stable, who took care of Billy Meyers last week, and Mel Coogan of Brooklyn. This smacks of proving a fast, slashing scrap. The two boys went to a dead heat over in Connecticut last Friday night. They are evenly matched, fast enough travelers and should deliver big.

It is understood that beginning tonight Larry Conley will referee all future windup events at the Arena. If such turns out to be the case, the Armory A. A. members will applaud the move, as since Phil Powers ceased handling the big numbers Conley is the official the bulk of the fans want to see on the job.

The Hartley-Coogan clash, as well as one, if not both, six-rounders, will be refereed by Maffitt Flaherty.

LEOCHARES LANDS FEATURE AT LAUREL

Laurel, Md., Oct. 2.—A crowd of 5,000 persons witnessed the running of an excellent card at the first day's sport of the Fall meeting.

In the feature event, the Laurel Handicap, at six furlongs, Leochares, the favorite, won breezing in the fast time of 1:12 1-5.

Jockey Robinson put up the best ride seen in Maryland this year when he outrode Iittle Forehand in the third race choice on a run from Crimper, and with jockeys reversed, the latter horse would have been knocked.

JACKSON GIRLS TO PLAY FIELD HOCKEY

Jackson College is to have a new varsity sport this season. Field hockey is to be added to basketball and track, and practice will start on the Tufts Oval, Medford, early in the week. Already a goodly number have signified their intention to make a bid for the team.

An attractive schedule has been arranged, games with Bryant School, Smith and Posse Gym, being among them.

Guard Alger Is Lost to Tufts

"Pat" Alger, Tufts' giant guard, received a slight cut on his right leg during last Saturday's scrimmage but paid no attention to it.

Today reports from the Somerville Hospital state that blood poison has set in and that Alger will be unable to don his football togs for some time to come.

This accident, coming practically on the eve of the Harvard game, gives Coach Whalen a tough problem to contend with. Abbott is the logical man to fill the vacancy, but "Pat's" shoes are large and it will take an exceptional man to fill them.

HARVARD PERSONALS

YALE has passed the buck along to the Crimson by announcing that the Eli players will be numbered in ALL the football contests this Fall.

SEVENTY-FIVE candidates reported for Fall baseball practice. Several veterans were out, including "Mickey" Reed and Joe Knowles. Coach Mitchell is expected to take charge next Monday.

UPWARD of 100 men are entered into the Fall tennis championships. The preliminary rounds were played yesterday.

FALL rowing for the varsity and club crews has started. Coaches Herrick and Haines addressed the candidates.

HONORS FOR GREEN SOPHS

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 3.—Dartmouth's sophomore nine won the final game in the annual class series from the freshmen, 20-8.

M'Donough Pick to Pilot Green

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 3.—Much batting and signal work was done mostly by the second string Dartmouth men whose work against Boston College last Saturday was far from satisfactory to the coaches. Assistant Coach Ghee took all the quarterbacks in charge and spent a large part of the afternoon drilling them in catching punts and running them back.

"Hube" McDonough, judging by his work Saturday, appears to be grasping Ghee's ideas better than any of the quarters so far, though Sid Holbrook is not far behind him.

The squad will be given some severe scrimmages this week, as the men are in fine physical shape and the coaches feel they can stand hard work.

Spirit of the Dance

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

BEAUTY in her eyes and smile, she typifies the Spirit of the Dance. Like an elfin figure high on a mountain top where the end of the rainbow strikes, she whirls along in a wild dance that threatens to draw the imagination into a dancing whirlpool. She breathes of lovely places where there is much strange lighting of an odd wine-like purple that hypnotizes you into seeing fairyland for long after wherever you look.

Their Married Life

Anne Arrives From the West and Is Met at the Station by Her Old Friends.

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

Helen and Warren had planned to go with Jack and Frances to meet Anne. At first Helen had demurred, sure that Jack would prefer to meet Anne alone, but Jack had laughed at the idea.

"Why, there's no romance connected with a railroad station," he had assured them. "I shall probably kiss Anne before a lot of strangers anyway, so why not have a few friends along to witness the sight, too?"

And so the four had planned to meet her, and then to go out to dinner somewhere, as the train got into Boston at six thirty. At the big station everything was bustling life. People swarmed in and out and they joined the crowd of people outside the gate before the track that announced the Chicago Limited.

"Did you wire her as I told you, Jack?" Frances queried anxiously. You know I left everything to you, and you promised to attend to it."

"I wired her that I would be here, of course," Jack returned. "But I didn't say anything about the rest of you. It would be nicer to surprise her."

"The train has come in," Helen interrupted excitedly as the first straggling began to come through the gates, "and oh, there she is, see, behind that tall woman!"

Jack's eager eyes had spied the little figure hurrying in, and he rushed forward. The rest hung back considerately. Jack seized her, bag and all, and almost lifted her from the floor.

"Well, here we are," said Frances, rushing up to her, "all your little pals. Goodness, child, you've grown fat. What have they been doing to you out in Kansas?"

"She hasn't changed a bit," Warren said, grinning at the flushed little face. Warren had always liked Anne Redding, she was so simply sincere, so eager to spend herself for others. It was a fault not common in the city, and Warren, who was inclined to be selfish himself, saw this unselfishness in others more quickly than he would have otherwise.

"We are all going to torment you and Jack through dinner," Frances announced. "Do you realize, if we promise to let you go up to my studio afterward, so that you can get acquainted again?"

"Of course not," said Anne dimpling deliciously," and I am crazy to see the studio, Frances. You are a peach to let me stay with you till I get married."

"But you're not going to stay with me," said Frances dramatically. "I'm not! Well, where am I going to stay?"

"At Helen's. You are going to have her guest room all to yourself, and Helen and Warren will sit in the kitchen every evening so that you and Jack can have the living room."

They all laughed at Anne's astonished face, and everyone began to talk at once about the plans for the wedding. By the time they had reached the little restaurant where they had decided to eat, Anne was flushed to the roots of her black hair with excitement. She had been speechless from the beginning, and once had been so near tears that Helen had motioned to Frances to stop.

"We oughtn't to spring everything on her at once," Helen said. "Give her time to digest some of it."

"And who knows," said Warren, jovially, "she might not like the idea of staying at our place. Speak up, Anne, and turn us down if you will."

The fun waxed fast and furious, and it was such merry fun that people turned enviously from other tables to look at them. Suddenly a dark, gypsy type of woman, who had been sitting at a table against the wall, got up deliberately and crossed over to them.

"Hello, Jack!" she said, laying her hand intimately on his shoulder; "haven't seen you for a dog's age. Where do you keep yourself these days? How is it you never eat at the old place any more?"

Jack flushed. It was not so much what the woman said, as the manner in which she said it. It savored of a familiarity that was unpleasant and could not help but silence the merry chatter about the table.

The woman was dressed flamboyantly. She was handsome in a way, but looked as though she had seen too much of life, for her face was hard.

Jack introduced her to the others as Mrs. Torelli, and after a few more allusions to the "old place" and the friends who had missed him the woman nodded and went back to her table. There was a little silence and then Jack, laughing a little nervously, began to explain.

"Can't that just like a woman of that type to come over here and speak to me?" he began. "She is the wife of a man who keeps an Italian restaurant."

"We fellows used to eat there a lot and Netta Torelli always took a personal interest in us. We were hearty all broke in those days, you know, and she used to be a good sort."

Anne heaved a little sigh of relief, and Helen met the girl's eyes with sympathy in her own. Not that there was any need of ever distrusting Jack, but men were often lenient in their idea of personal friendship, and it was such a relief to know that everything was all right.

The Swift Foe of the Rat

The Sinuous Weasel a Cousin of the Royal Ermine

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A rat with a weasel on his track is, I imagine, a very unhappy animal. His chances would hardly be worse unless his pursuer happened to be that red-eyed cousin of the weasel called a ferret. Get him in a corner and he will fight a man or a dog. But he will not stay in a corner to fight if a weasel is after him.

The fierce, swift, sinuous movements of his slender enemy confuse him and take the fight out of him. It is like a swordsman fighting with a streak of lightning. And the lightning becomes zig-zag when it is a ferret instead of a weasel that makes the attack.

Both the weasel and the ferret belong to the family of polecats, and one of their other slender cousins is the stoat, who, when he wears a white coat, with a black tip on his tail, is clothed with the name of ermine, whose fur kings were once so proud of adorning themselves with that they forbade common people, including those more skilled common people called nobles, ever to put it on.

All of these creatures are born rat-catchers, but the weasel and the ferret excel their relatives in bloodthirstiness, rapidity and cunning. When I was a boy I had a great fear of weasels because of the stories that I heard of their ferocity, swiftness, ability to go through the narrowest opening, and habit of springing upon their prey and instantly driving their sharp teeth into the arteries of its neck.

These stories were true enough in substance, only weasels were not so numerous nor so fond of chasing little boys as I had been led to suppose. The nearest I ever got to a weasel was in taking up, with rather tremulous fingers, from a hen's nest some fresh egg-shells, which, I was told, had been sucked by a marauding weasel.

Yet the weasel, for all the terror that he inspires, is one of the handsomest of the smaller four-footed animals. And if you can keep him away from the hens' nests and the chicken-yards, he is one of the most useful allies of man, on account of the ceaseless war that he wages on rats, mice, moles and other vermin.

The weasel has even been called "elegant" on account of his shape. He has the graceful "stream-lined" form which automobile manufacturers have coaxed so many extra dollars out of people's pockets, and his movements are an eye-lesson for dancing-masters.

A full-grown male weasel is about ten or eleven inches long, including a short tail; the female is somewhat shorter.

He has a small head, little round ears, a long, flexible neck, short limbs, five-toed feet, beautifully curved claws, sharp, white teeth, and a finely arched back. He has short, fine fur, brown on the top and side and white underneath. If his habitation is far north, he sometimes turns white in Winter, in imitation of the ermine, but he has not the invaluable black tip on his tail, and he is smaller than the ermine.

He will chase his prey anywhere —into a hole, up a tree, through any kind of a labyrinth, and across a stream of water, for he is a perfect swimmer. Only the ferret exceeds him in these exercises. The ferret is a professional, the weasel an amateur, almost as good as a professional. I have read one pleasing thing about the weasel—the female. It is said that a mother weasel will fight for her children against any possible odds, and will die on the spot rather than desert them.

Astronomical

Long had he worshipped her at a distance, but his shyness prevented him from proposing.

Then, one evening, for the sake of sweet charity, a theatrical performance took place, in which the charmer was leading lady and more adorable than ever. Afterwards the shy admirer drew near, his love made valiant by the sight of her beauty.

"You are the star of the evening," he said, as they stood alone in a corner.

"You are the first to tell me so," said the damsel, with a happy blush.

"Then," he retorted promptly, "may I claim my reward as an astronomer?"

The lady looked puzzled.

"What reward?" she asked.

"Why, the right to give my name to the star I have discovered!" said the young man, speaking boldly at last.

A Cold Climate

The following is told by a young bride-elect who was ordering her trousseau in England before going out to New Zealand to be married. The dressmaker suggested only very warm clothes, and when the young lady demurred at this, asserting that the climate of New Zealand is a beautiful mild one, she was immediately informed—

"I assure you, madam, you are mistaken, for that, of course, is where the frozen meat comes from."

The little harvest mouse

Do You Know That—

In Persia the wedding service is read in front of a fire. In Nicaragua the priest, taking the couple each by the little fingers, leads them to an apartment where a fire is lighted, and there instructs the bride in her duties, extinguishing the fire by way of conclusion. In Japan the woman kindles a torch and the bridegroom lights one from it, the playthings of the wife being then burned.

Shoeing horses to protect their hoofs against the evils of hard usage was unknown to the Greeks and Romans, and is first mentioned in the history of the Celts as late as the fifth century.

A custom peculiar to Buddhists is that of wandering priests, who carry with hammer and chisel and carving holy symbols upon rocks by the wayside.

The word "milliner" meant originally one from Milan—a Milaner; just as a "cordwainer," or shoemaker, was a worker of leather from Cordova.

There are ants in Australia which build their nests along a north and south line so accurately that a traveller may direct his course by their aid.

Russia has the highest death-rate in Europe; it is forty-one per thousand a year.

It is estimated that only 20 per cent. of Spain's population are able to read or write.

In Our Wonderful World

Oil is one of the financial backbones of the world. There are more oil kings than any other kings—barring royalty. Yet multi-millionaires, whose money came from oil, owe their fortunes to the mother oil, petroleum. By this it is meant that petroleum is the basis of nine-tenths of the oils other than vegetable oils. Petroleum comes from the earth a liquid substance. It is then run into huge tanks, where it is vaporized by the same process only under greater heat, and what is collected and condensed is paraffin. Paraffin and gasoline are the two lightest oils, and for this reason they are the first to be obtained. They are also known as the "inflammable oils," and, as such, far the two most important oils in existence. When these have been extracted the heavier oils are driven off. Firstly the thin, then the thick lubricants. The residue, on cooling off, forms solid paraffin. Another substance obtained from petroleum is naphtha.

Whenever there is a night attack in the European war the battlefield is made almost as light as by day by means of searchlights, special star shells which burn in the sky and throw out a brilliant light, and ground lights. These ground lights are used to illuminate the actual ground over which the enemy may advance, and many thousands have been used by the soldiers, especially when the two lines of trenches are very close to one another.

The lights consist of a skeleton circular frame of iron covered over with canvas and filled with a composition of resin, tar, and other combustibles. As a rule they are fired from trench mortars, towards the wire entanglements, a short fuse lighting the composition. This burns with a dazzling flame for a quarter of an hour or more, and as long as it is burning the surroundings are lighted up sufficiently to prevent any enemy attack being made without instantly being seen.

Felt-making, which has now attained such huge proportions, had a very humble origin. A mass of substance, who suffered from cold feet, conceived the idea of lining his boots with wool. The moisture which the wool then contracted and the pressure to which it was subjected between foot and shoe, combined with the heat of the body, caused the fleecy substance to consolidate into a rude sort of felt. It was not long ere an intelligent and thoughtful genius conceived the idea of utilising it for the other extremity, and thus was evolved the hat.

The process of whitening sugar was discovered in a curious way. A hen that had gone through a clay puddle walked with her muddy feet into a sugar factory, leaving her tracks upon a pile of sugar. It was noticed that the sugar was whitened where her footmarks lay. Experiments caused the clay to be used for refining sugar.

The alchemist who essayed, by mixing various earths, to make a crucible that would endure was agreeably surprised to find that he had produced porcelain.

"Like the Poor Minister"

The minister's wife was tireless in discouraging the use of tobacco. According to the good lady it was the weed which made a veritable wilderness of the rose-garden of life.

"Well, Annie," she remarked to one of the village lassies about to get married, "I hope your chosen is one of the non-chimney variety. He does not smoke, eh?"

"He ain't what you'd call a slave to the habit, ma'am," replied the girl, "but he ain't exactly a stranger to it. I don't feel called on to put a stop to it, neither. You see, I want him to be happy and comfortable about the house when we're married.

"Surely he would be just as happy without that dreadful tobacco?" she asked the lady.

"P'raps he would, ma'am, and p'raps he wouldn't," came the answer; "anyhow, I wouldn't like him to keep on findin' jobs out o' sight every few minutes, then come in eatin' corfy berries, like the poor minister."

Near the Water

"Look here," exclaimed the new tenant, indignantly. "You advertised this place as being near the water. I've looked in every direction and I don't see any water."

"You haven't looked in the cellar yet," reminded the agent.

This Will Remove Hair or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Novelized from the Great Film Play by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

EPISODE NO. 8
"Play Ball"

By Beatrice Fairfax

(Novelized from the scenario of Basil Dickey and produced in motion pictures by Wharton, Inc., Studios for the International Film Service.)

(Copyright, 1916, International News Service)

TUCKED off in a corner of her brain, every girl has a picture of the man she wants to marry. Her heart and her imagination collaborate to paint the portrait of her ideal and sometimes ambition adds a touch or two to the limning of "The Right Prince."

Sometimes they draw him and thin him with the delicate softness of a Gainsborough Blue Boy; sometimes he is as impressionistic as that geometry-book-struck-by-acyclone tangle of colors known as "Nude Descending a Staircase."

Every girl has her Prince of Dreams. Molly thinks he must be Ambassador to the Court of St. James—and contents herself with the freckle-faced grocery boy. Suzan vows she will marry anyone but a physician, and ends up by adoring a fellow of Medicine plus, and breaks her faith with herself for the sake of one who keeps late office hours and cures.

Some adore dreams that never come true, and some adore realities who never prove untrue. But real worship is given to popular heroes—men who are not just average citizens, who cannot be done up into bundles like other faggots and dealt with in statistical groups—but who get whole paragraphs on the front pages of the papers and in "Who's Who in America."

The leading playwright and his leading man; the star cartoonist and the author of the year's best seller; the golden-haired movie hero and the golden-throated opera singer are admired of women and decried sometimes by the "hundred-legged" men.

Introducing Bert Kerrigan

But nature was physical before she was psychical or psychological. Man ran before he rhymed. He aimed at hidden foes before he aimed at epigrams. So nature insists that the normal human shall give the greatest, deepest, most honest admiration to him who excels in clean physical sports.

Today we award our Olympian victors laurels—the laurels of praise which make outsiders envious.

Now when Hercules has Apollo's beauty, and nature has added some of the wisdom of pinin common sense, when her hero is no fool to strut and pose forgetful that he did not mold his nose or articulate the bones of his arm—then you have a hero deserving dreams and laurels and love. Such was Bert Kerrigan.

Mr. Kerrigan is a tall, well-built young man, who might pose for a Montgomery Flagg or a Frazieles figure. He is good looking in a splendid, manly way. There might be many girls to cherish him as "The Right Prince" some to life —only he picked out his own "little princess," and on the day of which I write she sat before me in my office trying to overcome her jealous fears of that "other girl" of whom her anonymous letter had told.

Rita's Faith Restored

Rita Malone seemed restored to faith when she left me. If it had been more than "seems" I should have no story to tell!

When Jimmy came in to pay his respects the next morning gloom still had possession of him. Since I couldn't quite understand his viewpoint, I made no attempt to discuss it, but instead tried the cheering effect of a bit of gossip.

"The pretty girl you so cavalierly ignored yesterday afternoon was Bert Kerrigan's fiancee. Now, aren't you sorry you didn't try to make friends in high places?"

That rather hurt him and a rather startling effect. Jimmy seemed to dismiss all consideration of his own affairs for a very earnest consideration of my bit of news.

"What did she want? Why didn't you tell me?" began Mr. Barton excitedly, and his interest showed no signs of waning when I found Rita's letter and showed it to him. He read it with more care than that ill-written anonymous epistle seemed to deserve and immediately thereafter he whirled upon me with an air of generalship more in keeping with J. B. and his previous manner of gloom.

"Call her up. Tell her not to go. It's a trap," he ejaculated so forcibly that immediately I was convinced to make every effort to obey.

I found Mrs. Patrick Malone's number in the telephone book and asked Mollie to get it quickly. A moment later a voice with a bit of the brogue informed me that this was Mrs. Malone but that Rita had gone out.

"Why, bless your heart, dearie, she didn't tell me where she was goin' at all. She just came out on the porch an' told me to send a spell ago and when she started away, I asked her where she was goin', and Rita says to me, says she, important business and that's not at all the way she's after treatin' her mother generally.

"And the worst of it is, just after she went, the phone rang and her young man wanted to speak to her too. When I'm after tellin' him that she isn't here, but had to go and meet some one, he seemed almost as excited as you are now, miss.

"I do be thinkin' it's strange that my Rita should have so many people excitin' her after all of a sudden, and be so secret-like with her own mother, too. Why, only yesterday she got a letter she wouldn't show me at all, and even Bert's letters she most generally shows me. I don't understand it and I'll thank you if you be explainin'."

It seemed cruel to interrupt such a flow of rhetoric and I smiled to myself as I imagined the unschooled woman who was excitedly pouring out her difficulties to the first listener who offered her an emotional outlet.

How to Absorb an Unlovely Complexion

The face which is admired for its beauty must have a satin-smooth skin and white and youthful looking. The only thing known that can make such a complexion out of an aged, faded, or discolored one—that is, a natural, not a painted, complexion—is mercolized wax. This remarkable substance literally absorbs the unsightly cuticle, a little each day, the clear, fresh skin which is thus disclosed being peeling out until within a week or so all traces of it are gone. Of course such blemishes as freckles, moth patches, liver spots, blackheads and pimples are discarded with the old cuticle. You will procure an ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store, use the solid cream every night, washing this off morning, you'll find it a veritable wonder-worker.

Another valuable natural treatment is a wash lotion to remove wrinkles which can be easily prepared. Dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in this and you'll find it works like magic.—Advertisement.

However, even Beatrice Fairfax is occasionally compelled to be cruel in order to be kind. So in the interests of her daughter's fate I had to leave Mrs. Malone's request unanswered for the present.

The Pursuit Begins

"Well, Jimmy, you may have mathered me in a manner that I wasn't talking to our pretty little Rita," said I. "It was her mother, and Mrs. Malone informs me that her daughter has left the house without any word as to her destination. In other words, she's gone."

All animation was Jimmy now. That young disciple of Sherlock Holmes shook off his gloom with great suddenness and seemed intent on nothing in all the world but the pursuit of Rita Malone!

"It's a trap, I tell you, Miss Fairfax. We've got to find that girl and do it quickly. Martin O'Day has a hand in this and I'm thinking his other hand is on the ticker. Certainly it is a trap.

MY HOUSEWORK IS NOW A PLEASURE

Statement Made by Saugus, Mass., Lady, After Taking the New Stomach Remedy

Relative to the wonderful new preparation, Plant Juice, now being introduced in Boston for the first time, which has created such a furore in all the large Western cities, where thousands have flocked to the headquarters to testify to the benefit received, is the following signed testimonial of Mrs. Cora Winchenpaw of Saugus, Mass., residing at the end of the State Road, and who was asked to assist in this town, where she has hosts of friends, to say:

"For the past ten years I have suffered with stomach trouble, which took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia and I felt miserable all the time. I could not eat, in fact, could not keep any solid food in my stomach, which was like a sour, sickening gas; could not sleep at night, had headaches, dizzy spells, and the least little thing would upset me. I had to live on chicken broth, oatmeal gruel and fruit, and so weak that I could scarcely get around to do my housework. Seeing what it was doing before my eyes and I could hardly see anything, my husband was greatly alarmed, and I had no ambition or energy left. Then I got a bottle of Plant Juice and got so much relief from the first bottle that I continued to take it. I am now glad to state, for the benefit of other sufferers, that I am entirely cured; have no more pains or distress and never felt better in my life. My housework is a pleasure to me now and I feel better and stronger every day."

There are numerous symptoms of this trouble that Plant Juice can relieve. In fact, any one of the following may denote affections of the stomach: Indigestion, dyspepsia, belching of wind, bad breath, sick, throbbing headaches, poor circulation, night sweats, that tired feeling, costiveness, a coated tongue and poor complexion.

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing this sensational new remedy. Advertisement.

AUTOIST FINED ON WOMAN'S CHARGES

Captain William McMillan of Winthrop, veteran pilot, was accused in Newton Court today by Mrs. Norman Marshall of Chestnut street, West Newton, of improperly navigating his automobile.

Mrs. Marshall is wife of a well-known leader in the Progressive party and she drives a small automobile. She complained that Captain McMillan was guilty of unreasonable speed while he was driving an auto on Commonwealth avenue on September 22.

Mrs. Marshall said that Captain McMillan cut in so closely in front of her that fear of his machine hit the front of her car. Then the captain, she said, pushed right along without stopping to see if any damage had been done.

Captain McMillan allowed—to paraphrase his testimony into nautical terms—that he never realized that he had bumped any other craft and that he simply cruised right along on the open sea.

But the judge ruled that the pilot was guilty and imposed a fine of $25. The captain appealed.

STATE INQUIRY ON DRUG EVIL

A State-wide probe of the drug situation will be started by the Massachusetts Drug Commission with a public hearing next Monday forenoon at the State House.

The commission was created to investigate the increasing use of habit-forming drugs and the ineffectiveness of the present laws intended to stamp out the evil.

A headquarters has been assigned the commission in Room 147, State House, the room used by the House Ways and Means Committee during the legislative session. It is in this room that the first public hearing will be held.

Herman C. Lythgoe, chief of the State Food and Drugs Department, who is a member of the commission, said today that the commission was considering the advisability of holding hearings in the populous centres of the State.

Many persons familiar with the drug situation have been invited to speak at the first hearing. Among them are United States Revenue Agent C. R. Sheeley, Deputy Collector John J. Gilbride, Deputy Collector Maurice T. Scanlan, Dr. E. B. Lane, superintendent of the Adams Nervine Hospital; Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath, Assistant Medical Examiner Leary, Secretary James F. PRICES DROP AFTER STRONG OPENING

After showing strength in early trading prices on the New York Stock Exchange weakened on the lessening of public demand, and nearly all important stocks had losses at noon.

Interest centred in steel and equipment stocks. New high records were made by Pressed Steel Car at 70 and General Motors at 75, the highest price ever obtained for any stock except Northern Pacific's public quotation of 119½.

American Locomotive at 84¾ and New York Air Brake at 114 registered new high prices for the year. Buying of equipment stocks was inspired by placing of large foreign orders for locomotive and railroad cars. Buying in morning was a continuance of big profits of the afternoon.

United States Steel was weak all morning, never getting above yesterday's closing, and fell 1¾. At noon it showed a point loss. Crucible Steel, after having a point gain, went off ½ point. Other issues at noon were Colorado Fuel 1¾, Baldwin 1¾, New Haven 1½, Marine common 1¾, preferred 1¾, Canada Southern 1¾, Studebaker 1, Utah Copper 1¾, Integration 1 and Amalgamated ¾.

The Boston market was regular at 6000, with prices showing a tendency at weakness. Utah Metal was the feature for activity, but forfeited its early gain and showed a loss of ¾.

Swift & Co. was the feature in the day's high record of 162, yielded half a point. Utah Copper was off a point. Other losses at noon were U. S. Smelting ¾ and Copper Range ¾. Boston Elevated, Quincy, Mohawk and United Shoe were each up ½.

Explanation of the strength of Swift & Co. is found in the understanding that the company will show earnings of about 25 a share on its stock for 1916.

Universal Military Training Necessary to Future Safety

THE ugly tone of Lloyd George's message to Americans and the menacing statement of Japan's chief diplomat that his government will call the United States to account for Japanese exclusion when the proper time comes ought to be warnings to us to prepare for serious trouble in the future.

As long as England was dependent upon American aid for food, money and munitions of war and escape from sure defeat, her government and press were sweet as Summer. Now that England believes the tide of war has changed, we are peremptorily told that England will treat Americans and American trade and American rights exactly as she sees fit.

There is to be no freedom of the seas. Other nations will use the ocean highways under orders from England or not use them at all.

Sooner or later this intolerable assumption of English sea tyranny is almost sure to result in our having to fight for the same liberty of the oceans for which our fathers fought the same tyranny in 1812.

If that time should come England will doubtless resort to her invariable tactics. She will shut herself up behind her naval barriers and bribe or incite other nations to do the land fighting against us. She will bring Japan and other Asiatic mercenaries to assail our country, exactly as she has brought Hindus, Africans, Cossacks, Senegalese and other savages to assail Germany.

She will use the men of her colonies to lead the forlorn hopes just as Irish, Australian, New Zealand and Canadian troops were selected to die in heaps at the Dardanelles, in Serbia and in the sanguinary battles in France.

We will be attacked by Japanese on the Pacific coast, by Mexicans on the southern border, and by the British fleets in the Atlantic Ocean, the Mexican Gulf and the Panama Canal.

Now, it rests entirely with us today whether this combination beats and humiliates and despoils us, or whether we hammer it into submission and make it sick of war for another hundred years.

This United States of ours is potentially strong enough in money, men, resources and superior intelligence to whip England and Japan with any allies they can bully or buy to join them.

But our huge strength IS POTENTIAL only.

And the only possible way in which our huge POTENTIAL STRENGTH can be made ACTUAL STRENGTH is to begin to train every American man who is sound in body to be a capable reserve citizen soldier.

We must adopt the only right system of national military preparedness, which is to maintain a large body of highly trained officers, a comparatively small, highly trained standing army, a great store of weapons, aeroplanes, dirigibles, munitions and equipment, and compulsory military training of every schoolboy and compulsory training of every man from his eighteenth to his twenty-fifth year, for at least a few days in each year.

The most democratic system and the most genuinely American system is to make every man, whatever his position, do his duty to his country and at least partly prepare to be a soldier if at any time his country should need him.

Universal military training of a limited but sufficient character can be secured without interfering with the work or convenience of the people, without inflicting any hardship upon any man, but on the contrary actually conferring great benefits in the way of physical development and outdoor enjoyment.

Military training should begin in the public schools. The physical exercise, the discipline, the system involved in such training will be a great advantage not only to the body but to the mind of every child undergoing such training.

After the boys have graduated from the schools and have gone into their chosen occupations, one month a year, through a period of from three to five years, would be sufficient to keep them in training and to further develop them as possible soldiers.

This vacation—for it would practically amount to that, and a vacation of a most healthful kind—should be taken at the expense of the State and not in any way at the expense of the man performing these military duties.

The training of the whole citizenship to this extent and the formation of a corps of officers sufficiently competent to conduct this training would provide the fundamentals of an invincible defensive army.

The enlargement and multiplication of our naval and military academies would provide the necessary officers, and as the AMERICAN has frequently said, the majority of the graduates of these institutions could take their places in civil life and work, peculiarly well fitted for such work, and at the same time be available for the country in time of need.

The superior democracy of such a plan of universal service is self-evident. A standing army creates a caste, a caste which is at the service of the aristocracy and which is a constant menace to democracy. Universal service, on the contrary, democratizes every citizen. It brings the employer and the employe side by side in the ranks. It makes an army which can serve only the public, because the army is the public and is the whole public.

Instead of creating a factional soldiery to further the aggressions of the classes, it creates a universal citizen soldiery capable, if necessary, of resisting the aggressions of the classes. It makes for peace and content, self-reliance and independence at home, and, above all, it adequately and effectively provides an invincible defence against a foreign foe.

Universal service is the healthful and human system, the democratic system, the American system and the only effective system. It should be studied, comprehended and adopted.

Modern Treatment of the Opium Habit

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

THE treatment of the opium habit is now a comparatively simple affair, although one requiring great skill and judgment and infinite variation in its application to each particular case. The first and absolutely indispensable step is that the patient shall be induced freely and willingly to enter a specially equipped hospital or sanatorium and to place himself entirely under the control of a physician. Then the drug is cut down just as rapidly as possible, without causing shock or severe suffering to the patient, which may mean anywhere from two to six days, according to the severity of the case and vigor of the individual patient.

In the meantime laxatives, diuretics, sudorifics, "cleaners-out" of the system of every sort, by every possible avenue, bowels, kidneys, skin, lungs, are poured into the patient. The rapidly reducing doses of the drug are sufficient to keep the patient comfortable in proportion as his accumulated poisons are swept out. When the last of these poisons is gone the craving stops, and the drug is no longer needed.

From this it is simply a question of building up the patient and preventing the re-accumulation of his own waste poisons in his system, because all his body sewers of every sort and description have been badly clogged and disorganized by the morphine. There is no attempt to provide any substitute for the drug, even of the mildest. Some of the treatments include for a short time small doses of a group of drugs which have a mildly sedative and pain-relieving effect, belladonna, atropin and hyoscyamus, but these are probably useful chiefly for their relaxing effect, and, strange as it may sound, the most valuable and constant drug in all these new cures is the famous old standard laxative, calomel. And the sign which is relied upon as indicating that no further doses of morphine will be necessary is the condition of the bowels.

The former history of the treatment of opium addiction is one of the most pitiable and discouraging in history. It was supposed to be necessary to find some milder narcotic or sedative which the patient could be switched onto and then from that to a milder one, and so on gradually to complete abstinence. The character and desirability of most of these substitutes may be glimpsed from the now almost incredible fact that when morphine was first extracted from opium it was actually recommended as a cure for the habit and a harmless substitute for the full drug!

Sad to relate, patent and advertised cures for the opium habit are still in this stage, and at least 90 per cent. of them, no matter how highly recommended, contain either opium itself or morphine or heroin. They are literally casting out devils by Beelzebub, the Prince of Devils, and the misery of the unfortunate addict who is "cured" by one of them is even greater than before.

It might perhaps be explained that opium contains a number of extractives or active principles upon which its narcotic effect depends. Chief among these, both in activity and in amount, is the now well-known morphine, so called after Morpheus, the god of sleep, on account of its sleep-producing effects. The innocent chemist who first extracted it really believed that he had succeeded in separating out the sleep-bringing properties of opium and excluding all the poisonous ones, but he was soon painfully undeceived.

After morphine come a number of other extractives, the chief and best known of which are codein, heroin, narcien, papaverin, and others. Each one of these as it was brought out has been hailed as containing the beneficial or pain relieving qualities of opium, without any of the poisonous and habit-forming ones, and our cough mixtures and colic cures and soothing syrups, which no longer dare to use opium or morphine, endeavor to carry off the ancient delusion by substituting the "harmless" heroin or codein.

These extractives, from the fact that they were whitish powders and would form salts with acids—ordinary morphine is sulphate of morphia, for instance—were given the most unfortunate title of alkaloids, a name which has no more "to do with the case" than the proverbial flowers that bloom in the Spring.

The cure of morphinism then requires, first, the strict limitation and restriction of the medical use of the drug to the relief of acute and agonizing pain for brief periods and in skilful hands only. Second, the prompt and intelligent treatment, according to modern humane and scientific methods, of such cases as may develop. Third, in the early recognition and appropriate hospital treatment for those cases in which insanity is the real cause. Fourth, in the diminution and cure as far as possible of the relapsing painful disease, and in the strict avoidance of the use of morphine in the treatment of any of them, with the exception of renal colic or gallstone colic. The free use of opium or morphine to alleviate the atrocious agony of incurable cancer, or the miseries of the last stages of hopeless consumption, is not only admissable but a humane duty as any "habit" which may be formed will soon be "cured" by the Great Rest-bringer.

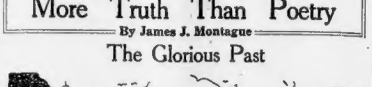
The Glorious Past



IN olden times, when British crews held up our ships at sea,
We didn't wring our hands and cry: "Can such things really be?"
Not us! We merely went to war and, when the war was through,
John Bull had learned that certain things were hardly safe to do.
But when the same thing happens now that we are rich and fat,
We say: "How could you do it, John?" and let it go at that.

IN other days, if we had heard a quite well founded tale
That Mr. Bull was opening your Uncle Samuel's mail,
We would have lost no time in grief. We'd just have said to John:
"You'd better quit, because you'll have to fight if you keep on."
But when the same things happen now we say: "Dear sir, we hopes
When you have read our mail you'll let us have the envelopes."

IN olden times we had few ships to back the claims we made,
But no one in our lexicons could find the word, "afraid."
And when our toes were trodden on, however vast the might
Of him who sought to walk on them, he simply had to fight.
We were not strong, but we were game to tackle any foe.
The times that I've been telling of were very long ago!

At Last a Real Reform in Girls' Dress Has Come, Says Dorothy Dix

Insurance Company's Order That Young Women Employes Dress Sanely During Business Hours or Lose Their Jobs Is the Only Solution to an Old Problem

By Dorothy Dix

THE only crusade against the Demon Rum that has ever amounted to a row of pins is that waged by big business men. Temperance oratory and blue-ribbon movements were mere words and hysteria, but when large employers, with good jobs to give, firmly announced that the hand that lifted the highball would never pull down a pay envelope in their service, we began getting a prohibition that really prohibits.

Now, what drink is to a young man dress is to a girl. It's her temptation. It's her snare. It's the thing that she flies to for consolation in moments of trouble, and the way she expresses her exuberance in times of joy. It's the thing that she puts upon her back that takes away her reason. Clothes are her spree, her jag, her delirium tremens of chiffons and beads and high heels and frills.

Dress Reformers of All Varieties Have Long Worked in Vain to Check This

Every one has seen that something should be done to curb the dress mania in girls—and especially the present undress habit—but no one has known how to do it. Shocked old ladies have held up their hands in horror over skirts that climbed higher and higher toward the knee line and stockings that get thinner and thinner until they have almost reached the vanishing point. Moralists have inveighed against calling a wisp of flesh-colored chiffon a bodice and letting it go at that. Doctors have warned against the dangers of pneumonia in bare necks in wintry weather. All to no purpose.

Dress-drunk young women have continued to wear what we used to consider ball costumes to breakfast, and when you went into an office you couldn't tell whether the fluffy-headed maiden in gorgeous array was the millionaire proprietor's daughter on her way to a party or a poor working girl trying to earn an honest living.

Now, however, the men who canned the can in the drink problem for young men have turned their attention toward dress reform for girls, at least during business hours, and there's going to be such a combing of hair, and washing of faces, and pulling down of skirts, and pulling up of waists as will gratify the souls of all of those who like to see a lady look like a lady. For girls may be deaf to the voice of the preacher, but when the employer speaks it penetrates beneath even the most marcelled coiffure, and the owner thereof sits up and takes notice.

The leader in this great campaign for dress decorum is a big life insurance company which has informed its female employes that hereafter they will be expected to eschew gewgaws, and attire themselves as befits sensible working women.

"We have no objection to our young women employes making themselves as attractive as possible," says the president of the company, "but they must do so within reason during business hours. We do not attempt to dictate to them, but we object to their coming to the office in ballet skirts, their chests bared, and their hair dressed as if for a social function. We wish our young women to be business women while in the office, and we think enough of them to deplore that they should attract adverse criticism in the street."

The insurance company's example has been followed by the telephone company in Philadelphia, which announces that the company disapproves of its girl employes wearing knee-length skirts, and that any girl coming to work dressed like a chorus girl, and with her face painted, will be sent home to change her clothes and wash her face.

Several business houses have joined individually in the movement, and during the past week I heard of two girls who were requested by the heads of the departments in which they worked to wear thicker waists.

Women are always very sensitive to masculine criticism of the way they dress and get very indignant at the idea of mere man dictating to them about what they shall wear, but the men are in the right in this instance, and it is to be hoped that the girls will have enough sense to see it and revise their wardrobe accordingly.

One of the reasons that women have had such a hard time in trying to get equal pay for equal work is because they have not been taken seriously in business, and the chief reason why they haven't been taken seriously in business is because of their foolish clothes. They have not dressed the part. They have gone to work attired as if for an afternoon tea, and employers have looked upon them in the light of piffling, gabbling, gadding society girls, with no ideas beyond a macaroon and the latest thing in hats.

Our clothes brand us. They are the tag on us that gives our number. If you wanted to go into a big deal you'd never pick out for a partner a man who came down to work in the morning in his evening clothes. If you wanted a shrewd lawyer you wouldn't choose one who dressed in yachting flannels in office hours. You wouldn't put your money in a bank whose president was decked out in college sport clothes. All of these men might be ever so competent in their lines, but they wouldn't inspire confidence because of the way they were dressed. They wouldn't look their parts.

Would You Talk Business with a Girl Laden Down with Finery?

And it's exactly the same way with the girl in business. When she's rigged up in flimsy chiffons, with high-heeled dancing slippers on, and with beads rattling, and bracelets clinging, she doesn't look like an intelligent human being who would understand her job or be capable of making any sort of a binding contract.

Moreover, she doesn't show good taste or good judgment or good financial sense by her choice of inappropriate finery, and that is another black mark against her. An employer instinctively fears to trust a woman to make a trade for him who has invested her own money so idiotically.

To do things you must look as if you can do them. You must believe that you can do them, and you must be dressed as if you were in the habit of doing them, and this is something women have yet to learn.

Girls' desire to make themselves beautiful is such an overwhelming passion that they would probably never be able to conquer it of themselves. Therefore, it is good news that business men are going to help them by instituting a rational dress reform and by doing it in the same simple way by which they stopped their young men employes from drinking. In both cases, when it becomes a choice of drink, or dress, or job, the job wins.
